ABOUT TIME

La Vista '88

Chris,

It looks as if I got to be the lucky one getting out of Mrs. Torchelos class. Pre-Alg. is so easy. I had it for 3 years. Have an original dinner. Don't get to many kicks.

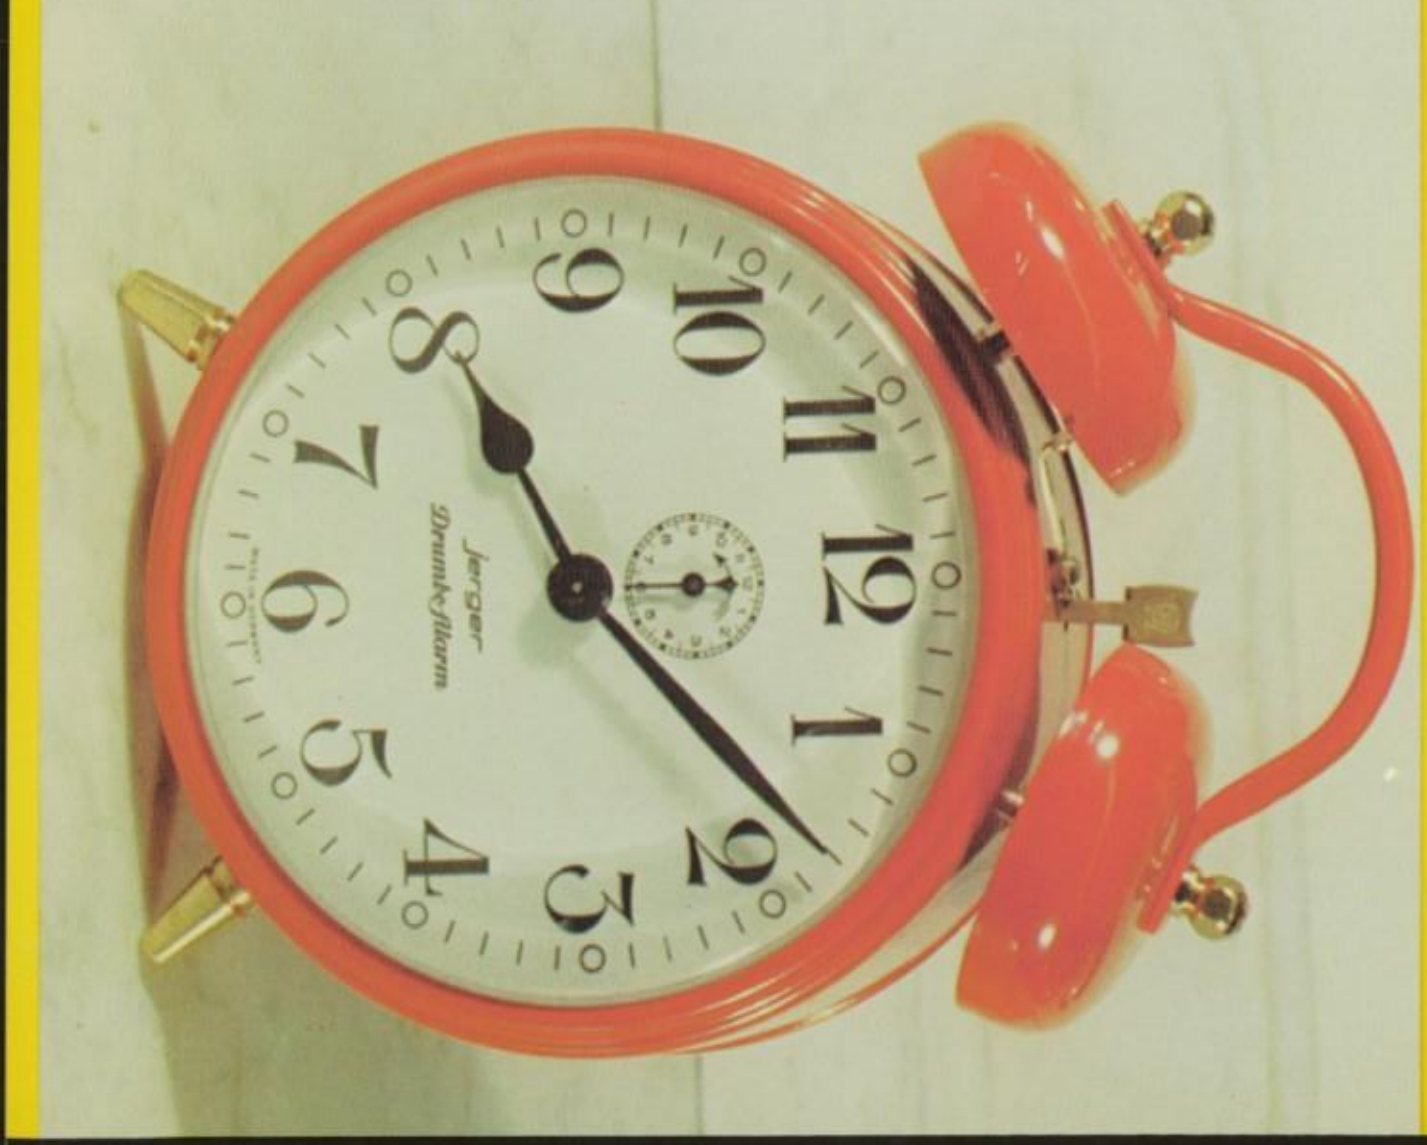
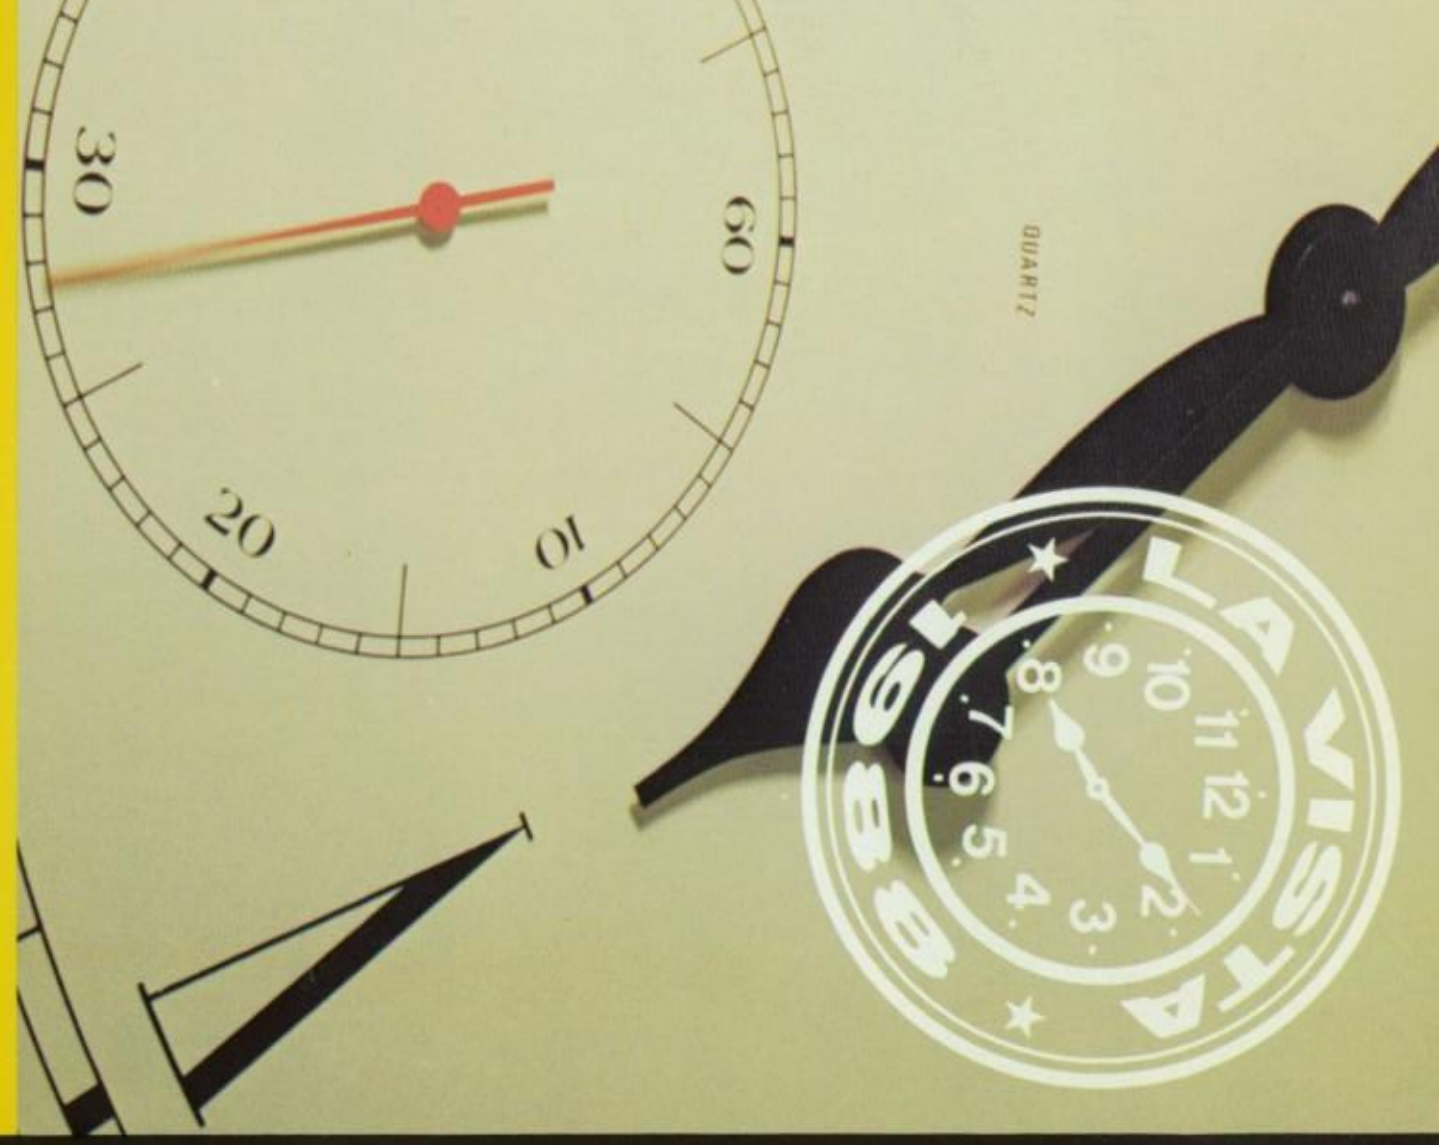
MONTE VISTA HIGH SCHOOL/ 3131 STONE VALLEY RD./DANVILLE, CALIFORNIA





At some time or another, every student has heard an adult reminiscing about how high school was the best time of their life. They talk about the parties, the carefree fun, and the good old times, but what they fail to mention are the monumental decisions that every high school student is forced to face.

Freshmen must abandon their Junior high traits to try and fit in with the high school crowd. Sophomores begin to understand the necessity of learning to take responsibility for their own actions. And, Juniors are now forced to actually take a look at some of their college choices. Seniors must face the reality of deciding upon a college and a major or wanting to jump right into a career.

Those adults were right about something. High school is the time for parties and romance. First love abounds throughout the halls. But, now is also the time that we are forced to make these important decisions that will affect the rest of our lives. It's about time that we started to think about some of these choices because before we know it, this time will be gone.

Times

When you think of school, one of the last things to come to mind is having fun. But when you sit back and really think about it, fun is all around us.

There are events, such as rallys and dances, that will be a part of out memories for all time. They are timeless in that they are a type of fun that all classes can enjoy together.

Occasionally, there is even a good time or two during classes. Whether it is a shared joke between two good friends or something for the whole class to laugh at, it is a part of classtime that could also be classified as a good time.

Then there are lunches, breaks, doughnut runs, and 7-11 stops. These are all filled with good times; laughing at someone tripping over a pipe and never forgetting the look on her face, having food fights even though you aren't supposed to litter, and even just sitting and talking.

We've all had plenty of good times here at Monte Vista, but remember they don't end here. So let the good times roll and hope that they will never end.

1) Seniors prepare for a good time before the Homecoming Rally.
2) Greg Lahti, Mike Reed and Vincent Leung-Monte Vistas' bad rappers.
3) Mike Barraclough looks on as seniors Gia Beem, and Beth Ingram excite freshman Steve Pansini.
4) Angie Sabatino and Kelly Ormiston prepare to tango near the gym.
5) Candi Chan, Marybeth Callahan and Jenni Pickett pal around after the Powder Puff Rally.

As you look back upon your high school years, the events that will stand out in your mind will most often center around the traditional school wide highlights which occur every year. While some events may forever be engraved in our memories, others merely fade into the background. Classtimes, though the actual medium around which school revolves, often become lost in the shuffle. At first glance, only memories of endless lectures, undesireable work, and boredom may come to mind. But, below the surface classtimes have their own element of timelessness.

High school years are a time when everything begins to come together while at the same time it all seems to be falling apart. On a day to day basis, classes have a stabilizing effect, as they provide students with the knowledge and experience necessary to compete in the real world. The lessons that are taught and learned within the confines of a classroom cannot always be found between the pages of a textbook. Classtimes are in themselves irreplaceable, for they become a part of us, which we carry with us into the future.

Although it is always more fun to remember the good times that we've had in school, the hard times will often prove to be the most beneficial in future years. High school is full of learning experiences that help us grow into mature adults, but sometimes we have to struggle to keep our heads above the water. The SAT, for example, may now appear to be a great obstacle in life, but with dedication and perserverence, it is possible to conquer the "monster test" and consequently be accepted into college. Studying in itself can never really be considered enjoyable, but in the end, the amount of time that you put forth is revealed through your grades. Another aspect of high school, which lacks a sense of lightheartedness, is the actual training needed to excel in any physical activity. Sports require hours and hours of practice before any glory can be achieved in the game, match, or meet.

Studying, the SAT, and sports all share a few key characteristics. If you strive for excellence and put in the time, favorable results can be achieved.

However, there still exist cases where positive results are scarcely visible. If you are in trouble, big trouble where you've done something wrong and you know it, then you may just have to face the unpleasant consequences. Or, somehow managed to hurt a friend so badly that your friendship is now completely unsalvagable. These are truly hard times, when hope seems lost behind a cloud of depression. Yet, as time passes, you will come to realize that you have grown from experience. And your troublesome times have blended together with the happier ones to make you the special person that now exists. So, when times get tough, just do your best to struggle through them and keep on looking forward to brighter future.

1987 ROYALTY

The announcement of the Homecoming Court is the highlight of every Homecoming week. This week was no exception. As each person was called down by their classmates they were greeted by thunderous applause. The Freshman Prince and Princess were the first to be announced. They were Jenny Evans and Justin Johnson. The next couple were Karis Elkins and Jason Hill, the sophomore Princess and Prince. The Junior Prince and Princess, Carrie Koeper and Kristian Hansen were next to march down "the red carpet". Finally it came to the seniors, and everyone waited in anticipation for the King and Queen to be announced. But first, the Prince and Princesses had to be called. The first senior couple were John Steineke and Angela Sabatino. The second senior Prince and Princess were Bob Roath and Marybeth Callahan. Finally it came to the King and Queen. A startled Todd Parmley and a teary eyed Jenny Alpert walked down to their seats as Monte Vista's 1987 Homecoming King and Queen.

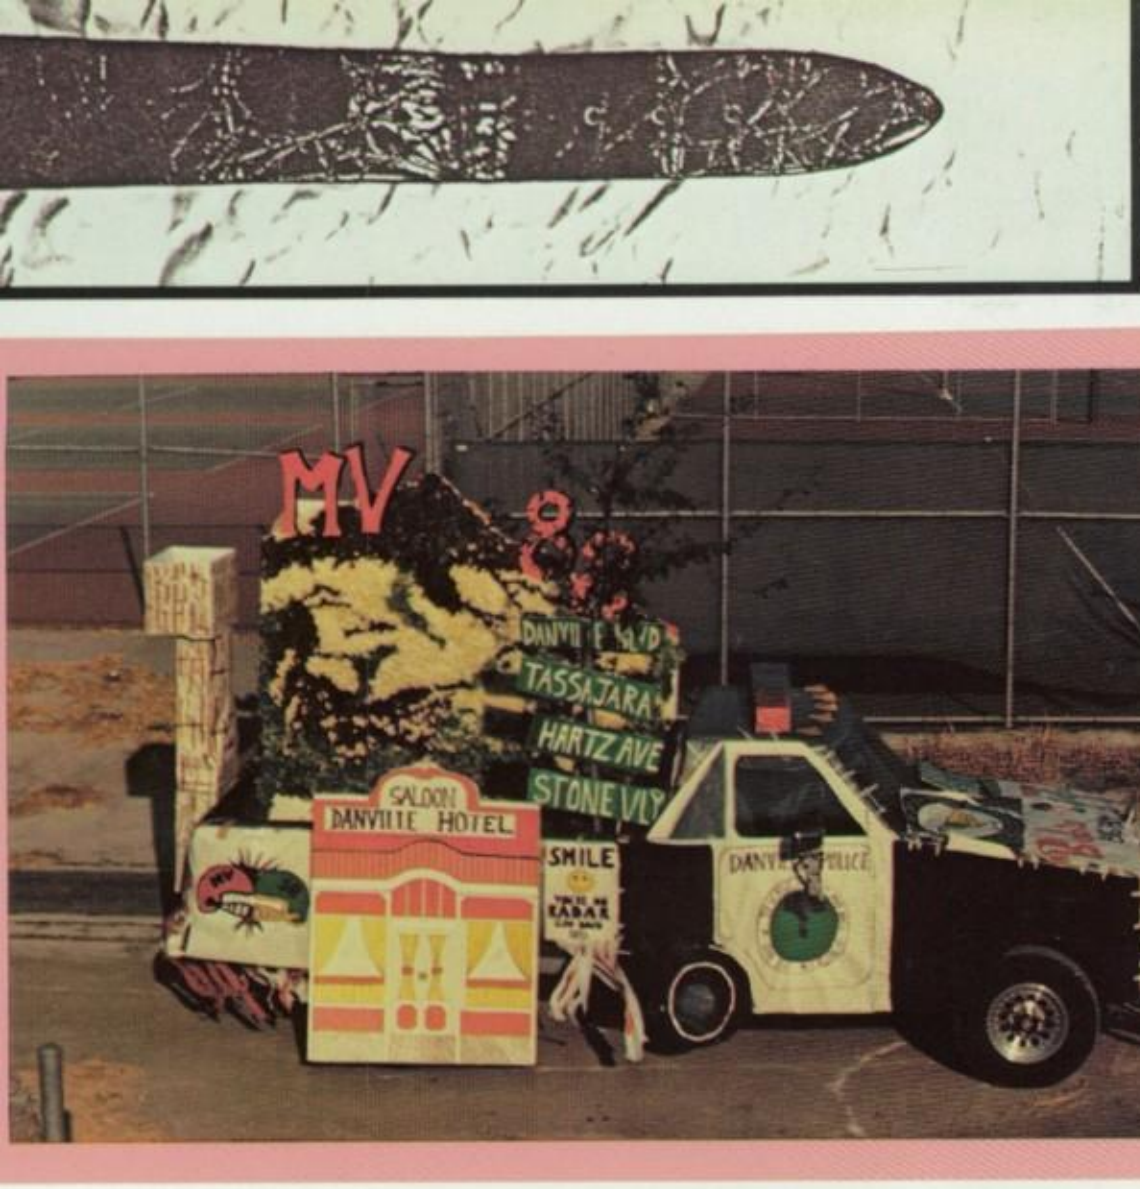
1987 Floats



The Seniors' winning float, "Last tribute to Danville."

The theme for floats for Homecoming 1987 was cities. The Freshmen picked Paris, The Sophomores chose Las Vegas, the Juniors, the Lost City of Atlantis. The Seniors decided on Danville, CA.

Work started on the floats on Monday, October 12. Each class was designated an area to work and all classes had the same amount of time to work in. There were volunteers from each class working diligently after school to make their float the best.

When the fateful day of Friday, October 16 arrived, judgement day, there was a last minute scramble to pull all of the floats together. At 3:30, the floats were taken behind the tennis courts to be judged. The impartial judges were Mr. Marshall, Mrs. Brickley, Mr. Ladoceur, and Mrs. Nelsen. When a final decision was made, the students were kept waiting until the winner was announced at half time during the homecoming game.

For 1987 Homecoming

Homecoming Week passed by in a flurry of fun and excitement, and once again the Seniors emerged as the victors of the Homecoming Week festivities.

Monday's theme was college day. Students dressed in UC sweatshirts roamed the halls hoping to score some points for their class. The lunchtime activity was the traditional MV bucket pass.

Juniors Kumiko Yoshida, Dan Choi, and Kelly Vittetoe helped the Juniors take first in the bucket toss and establish an early lead in the contest.

Backwards day was the theme for Tuesday. None of the classes received points for dressing, although Seniors Sami Kealy and Scott Gemmer were seen in proper attire.

At lunch the classes tried to bring Egypt to Monte Vista by building human pyramids. Ten students from each class were picked to be the pyramid. As if just building the pyramid weren't enough, all ten students also had to blow a bubble while in pyramid formation. The speedy Seniors built themselves right away, blew the required bubble, and easily took first place. After a long struggle the Juniors finally took second place, the Freshmen third, and the Sophmores fourth.

Wednesday's theme was sports. All classes received points for dressing up. At the mid-week rally for the annual Powder Puff game, an absolutely stunning cheer routine was performed by the Powder Puff cheerleaders. The eight men, who had SENIORS spelled out on their shirts, did an intricate dance routine to "Nasty", by Janet Jackson. Representatives from the Junior and Senior teams gave a pep talk, while the players cheered wildly. Although the Seniors were heavily favored to win the game, the Juniors managed to squeeze past the Seniors in overtime and win 7- 0.

Tourists was the theme for Thursday. The Seniors won at Thursday's lunchtime event, the dunking booth. Larry Cordisco and Jeff Bernstein managed to dunk their dunkees and help the Seniors take first.

Friday students came dressed in their class colors, while the Homecoming rally was the highlight of the day. Lots of old MV faces could be seen. The rally was filled with activities, including a bear hunt, and enthusiastic chorus of the MV rouser, the announcement of the Homecoming Court, and terrific performances bt the flag and letter teams, and the pom pon girls. The Senior class made a marvelous impact in their awesome red Senior shirts.

The lunchtime activity was tug-of - war, which the Sophomores won by defeating the Seniors.

The floats were judged after school on Friday. The Seniors' Danville float came in first place; the Freshmen's float came in second; the Sophomores' Las Vegas came in third; and the Juniors came in fourth with their Lost City of Atlantis float.

The Senior class traditionally scored far ahead of others, but every class seemed to have a good time and enjoy the activities.

"We've Got Spirit How 'Bout You!"

The Homecoming Rally took place on Friday, October 16. Each class had dressed in their theme colors. The Freshmen wore grey, the Sophomores in white, the Juniors in black and the Seniors wore their red t-shirts that stated, "We're hot, you're not."

The rally started off with a bear hunt for the Cal High Grizzly. Pursued by our very own Musty, the hunt continued until the bear was shot, dead. There was a show put on by the Letter Team and Flag girls and a rousing speech by Coach Ladoceur.

The highlight of the rally were the announcements of the 1987 Homecoming Court. Our confused Rally Chairman, the Chosen One, Todd Parmley, wasn't sure if he should perform his rally duties or his duties as our King.

Each class tried to out-chant-and-scream each other when the spirit blanket was brought around. When the decision was made the Seniors got first place, the Sophomores got second, the Freshmen got third, and the Juniors came in last.

The 1987 Homecoming Football game was a memorable event. The Monte Vista Mustangs romped on the Cal High Grizzlies with a 34-6 win. The sprit of the crowd soared while the Marching Band played the Rouser.

When asked how he felt about the game, Brian Knadle ,varsity cornerback, responded, "Because it was my last Homecoming Game, it was one of the highlights of the season."

The half-time show performed by the Marching Band was complemented by the cheerleaders routine to "Sweet Thing". The presentation of the class floats added to spirit of the night.

Finally, the enthusiasm of the crowd was boosted by the returning of the Monte Vista Alumni.

Monte Vista's Fall Blood Drive was held Fri., Nov. 13, in the Al Gentile Theater. The event took place from 8 am-2 pm and donors received cookies, juice, and a free T-shirt for donating their blood.

The day of the drive, 98 people registered to give blood. Out of these donors, 80 units were filled, and 18 people were rejected for one reason or another.

Each year Monte Vista sponsors the Blood Bank of the Alameda-Contra Costa Medical Association and promotes blood drives twice a year. For every unit of blood received through the school, it is credited into the school's blood account. If any member of the school, or any relative, needs blood, they may defer their cost by using the established account. This can mean $25 off an $80 unit of blood regardless of whether or not they donated.

Donors, however, were limited to the age of 17 and weight of at least 110 pounds. Many seniors who qualified were unable to donate for athletic reasons.

Those who did donate felt good about themselves and were glad that they may be able to save a life.

BUNS

What can be big or small, fat or skinny, round or square and everybody has one? Take a look around you and you'll notice, that the answer is a derriére. Everyone's behind is as unique as they are.

Maybe that is why one of the first things to catch another person's eye about you is your fanny. They will notice the way it wiggles as you walk down the hall, the way it looks as you bend down to pick up a book, or even how it looks when you are just standing still. Yet, almost everyone is embarrassed to admit that he or she may admire another person's butt. After all, how many times have you really heard someone say, "You know, I was just looking around and your bottom just leaped out and caught my eye. It's really gorgeous"? Think about if you were on the receiving end of such an unlikely compliment. Sure, you'd feel flattered, but you'd also probably think that whomever had just said it to you was rather odd and shameless. Yet after careful consideration, you might realize that he isn't that weird after all. I mean, how many times have you caught yourself noticing an incredibly cute behind? Don't be afraid to admit it. Go ahead and tell someone that they have a nice derriére, because as we all know, buns really can be beautiful.

AHEAD OF THEIR TIME ???!!!

Once again, for the third year in a row, the annual Powder-Puff football game brought excitement to Monte Vista. The game was played between the Junior and Senior girls, which made it very competitive. The girls played a vigorous game of flag football for 2, 20 minute halves. After a hard fought forty minutes, the game ended deadlocked at 0-0.

The girls weren't the only ones involved in the spirit of Powder-Puff. The guys also wanted to be a part of the excitement. They dressed up as cheerleaders and displayed as much enthusiasm, as our own female spirit leaders. The senior guys even went as far as to put together a spirit rally to help "psych" the senior puffers.

The amount of spirit that M.V. displayed during the Powder-Puff preparations, was something to be proud of. Congratulations go out to both teams of girls for a well-played contest.

The Taproots Theatre Road Company presented a hard hitting yet entertaining play on the effects of taking drugs. Done in an imaginative style, Taproots combined facts and fun trying to get their "don't take drugs" message across to Monte Vistans.

The play, entitled I Am The Brother of Dragons was written by Gillete Elvgren. Although there were only four actors, each played a multitude of parts using different props for each character whom they portrayed.

In the story, Sonny, an average adolescent begins taking drugs. At first, the family denies his addiction but Mom and Dad are soon forced to realize that Sonny has got a serious problem. This occurs when Sis, Sonny's younger sister, sneaks into his room and overdoses on his stash. It is then that Sonny 'bottoms out' (hits a low point in his drug addiction and realizes that he has a problem, and decides to quit.).

Sonny is put into a rehabilitation clinic and forced to tell his parents how he feels about what he has done. The play ends there and it leaves you wondering about whether or not Sis is ever going to recover.

Taproots was an intense drama that hopefully provided some food for though for everyone here at Monte Vista who has ever done drugs or even thought about it.

Time To Grow Up

Can you find the kid in this picture?

As we grow older, we sometimes feel the attraction of supervising younger children. The attraction comes from the excitement and freshness of the children. This is what ROP childcare is all about.

During the class, Monte Vista students are responsible for setting up the Nursery School, planning, and running the activities for the kids. During the Christmas holiday, the children put on a holiday presentation for their parents and grandparents. The presentation consisted of songs, rhymes, and skits. It was an experience that the children and the students will never forget.

The M.V. students in ROP childcare are getting a general education in child development and excellent "hands-on" training with Nursery age children.

The 1988 SCIENCE FAIR

What do acid rain, hummingbirds, passive smoking and birth control pills have in common? All the above topics were presented as projects in the 1988 Monte Vista Science Fair.

Biology students were asked to research an area of interest and the best presentations were chosen for display at the fair.

The Science Fair provided a valuable learning experience for both participants and observers. Bob Giannini, our esteemed principal, thought that, "The Science Fair gave the students the opportunity to show how much they really knew." The overall response to the fair was positive, but comments included not having enough time to view the displays and not enough publicity for the fair. Several teachers showed MV spirit by taking an on-campus field trip to the fair. In all the scientists of the future showed great promise.

Y & G

The Youth and Government program is made up of more than 50 students from Monte Vista. This program is sponsored by the YMCA all over the state. The students get together in three conferences in San Luis Obispo and the largest one is held in Sacramento. The students hold mock trials, designate roles, write up bills, and try to pass them through a mock congress. The highlight of the year is the Governor's Banquet where the participants meet the governor of California.

A TIME TO SPEAK OUT

Imagine yourself in front of a room full of people ready to give your speech. You try to look casual and pretend to be calm, cool, and overjoyed to be at the tournament, but you are actually very nervous and want to leave at this very moment. You open your mouth to speak, but you forget your first line. Upon remembrance of the monologue, you deliver the speech without hesitance. The hours of hard work and memorization pay off as you come home with a first place plaque in public speaking.

As you sit in a public library researching material for speeches, you constantly ask yourself, "Why am I stuck here on a nice, sunny day?" But when you receive an award for a speech, the endless hours of speech composing is well worth while. There is a significant amount of work involved in preparing for a speech and debate tournament, but when you win and bring home good results, there is a feeling of fulfillment.

A DAY IN THE LIFE
Of Monte Vista High School

In the book A Day In The Life, two hundred photo journalists went all over the world to capture the true spirit of the day. In honor of this magnificent journal, we would like to dedicate these two pages to all of the photographers who submitted a picture to this wonderful work of art.

What we attempted to do 15 create our own version of A Day In the Life. Rather than using the world as our playground, we concentrated upon Monte Vista's campus. Here is what the day of February 4, 1988 looked like throughout Monte Vista.

THE FINAL COUNTDOWN

Who is the governor of California? In a short essay, explain the main theme of To Kill A Mockingbird. How do you find the fifth derivative of 96? These are only a sampling of the possible questions that can be found on some not so ordinary tests — your finals.

Finals, those dreaded exams that come around twice a year, put fear in the hearts of even the most studious of people. With just one test, you can make or break your grade. You can pull it up from the brink of failure, or you can fall even deeper into the pit of destruction.

The extreme weight of finals puts all the more pressure on academically inclined students. Hours and hours of studying never seem to leave you fully prepared. In the eyes of many students, finals count for too much of their grades. Finals belittle the hard work you have done all semester and bring it down to just one big test. Too much pressure is put on the shoulders of conscientious students during finals week. Everything comes at you all at once. During finals, you must face major tests every day, creating an enormous amount of stress. For students whose grades are borderline going into the tests, the intensity heightens. Facing an entire week of life-threatening tests can destroy the mental balance of almost anyone.

However, finals can be viewed with a slightly different perspective. They do provide an overall review of what has been learned. Finals do not allow you to merely memorize then forget throughout the course of the semester. We are constantly reminded by teachers that colleges base grades on large tests rather than on every day work. Keeping this in mind, it is easy to see that our high school finals are preparing us for college life.

The overall easy solution to coping with finals is not a complex one. It includes a combination of advanced preparation, smart study habits, and an adequate amount of sleep. For students who keep up with their work throughout the semester, finals are much easier. Last minute cramming, although common among panicked people, often does more to hinder your grade than help it. All nighters before the big test usually backfire, leaving you too exhausted to make your best effort. Advanced preparation is the key. Keeping up with what is going on in all of your classes is especially important.

It is not really necessary to start studying specifically for finals weeks in advance, as long as you do not let finals sneak up and catch you unprepared.

For the most part, finals are a pain. Yet, there do exist welcome breaks, like an easy final in between those two killer make or break ones. In the end, we will all live through finals if we keep our cool. The real question is how will our grades fare?

1 — Barbie Schneider finds her Math final a little amusing.
2 — Pat Lewis thinks that Finals are just child's play.

ROCKIN' AROUND THE CLOCK

With M.V.'s Musical Maestros

This year the Monte Vista Instrumental Music groups are featured Live-In concert. The Orchestra, Symphonic and Concert bands, and Jazz Ensemble perform numerous times during the school year in our theatre as well as throughout the state. Each concert represents over 5000 hours of preparation in rehearsal. Students perform classical, jazz, and popular music at each concert throughout the year. In addition to concerts, they attend adjudicated festivals where judges comment on students playing ability. Monte Vista has always received excellent or superior ratings. The dedication of the students is the backbone of Monte Vista's instrumental music program. Yet, the program would not be nearly as successful as it is without Mr. Leahman's wonderful conducting talent and his exuberant enthusiasm.

MUSTY THE MUSTANG

Is it all work or just horseplay?

Musty has been a tradition at Monte Vista for twenty three years. Every year at the beginning of the football season, Musty comes out of his stall to resume his role. He appears at the sidelines of every game, ready to root for his team. He brings out the school spirit in everyone; students and parents alike.

Lately, the role of Musty has been handed down from student to student. However, when Musty first started, anyone who wanted to be Musty had to try out. It has also been a tradition that Musty's identity be kept a secret, and this year's Musty is no different. When asked, Musty described himself as "A bumbling entertainer with no coordination but lots of crown appeal, and nice legs."

Senior Dorie Mendell tells us what she thinks of Musty's role, "He symbolizes team spirit. I think that Musty represents each and every one of us. Only one person fills up the costume but in a sense all of us are Musty."

Yet it is not just fun and games. Musty must have an enormous amount of patience to play his role, appearing cheerful, spirited, nice to children, and, as the mailman, through sleet and snow his show must always go on.

Musty's job is not always a carefree one and he does seem to have his share of problems. After the September 11 game, Musty was walking towards home when two young men grabbed his head and took off running. After some investigation on the part of the administrators, Musty's head was returned. "I want to take them to the People's Court," Musty commented about the criminals, "In the case of the Headless Horseman."

ROCK AROUND THE CLOCK
MV Rally Time

The students in the stands roar, the cheerleaders enthusiastically jump through the air, and the ground shakes, but where are the athletes? Two rows of respectably clad football players make up the sidelines at one end of the gym, as the rally commences.

Rallies at Monte Vista are designed to promote school and class spirit. As individual classes are separated, Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors in their own section of the stands, they must unite to compete for the rally blanket, making as much noise as humanly possible.

Although a number of students choose to avoid the rallies, faithful rowdies continue to crowd the gym on occasional fridays to urge their team towards victory.

1- An enthusiastic bunch of Monte Vistans show their school spirit.
2- The short flag team stands at attention while awaiting the start of the music.
3- The senior class points in all directions to see who has spirit.

END OF THE WORLD

First of its time

1- General Wilmer (Ira Klusky) discusses the possibility of nuclear war. 2.- Merv Rosenblatt (Ben Kingsbury), Paul Cowan (Chris Adams), and Audrey Wood (Christine Adams) have lunch at the Russian Tea Room. 3.- Ann (Jodi Smith), watches while Michael Trent (Todd Parmley) and Stanley Berent (Mark Johnson) talk about deterrents. 4.- Jim (Eric Perryman) and Pete (Andy Willett) talk about the different scenarios of nuclear war while preparing dinner in the kitchen.

Philip Stone (Marc Baroux) threatens Michael Trent (Todd Parmley) in a climactic scene in End Of The World.

Global Doom has a three night run this year, as Monte Vistans revealed that a serious dramatic production was not beyond them. This year's Senior Play, Arthur Kopit's End Of The World, brought nuclear deterrence theory, M.C. Escher Prints, and Cornish Game Hens together in a sometimes funny, sometimes serious, and always thought-provoking evening.

What exactly is a senior play? It is a student-run production funded by the senior class. It's cast down not have to be made up of seniors; of twelve actors, three were juniors and one was a fifth grader. The class of 1988, however, made the profits. Senior plays are seen as a chance for MV to broaden its theatrical horizons; End Of The World was a west coast premire, opening the week before the American Conservatory Theatre's Production in San Francisco.

There was some concern that this play was too different from a 'normal' high-school play: would there be an audience for a play that says that current global deterence policy does not work and was leading to an inevitable nuclear holocaust? The answer, thanks to Todd Parmley's skilled direction and hard work of cast and crew, was a definite yes.

By: Andy Willett

The M.V. ATTITUDE IS . . .

Mr. Bakker: "For a school with a 'snobbish' reputation I sure have met a lot of nice, friendly M.V. students."
Christine Tomacci: "They are happy and smiling"
Geoff Wolfe: "Tis fortunate to have one's cup overfloweth."
Bob Roath: "Forwning, working, trying, playing smiling, laughing, and being."
Casey Taylor: "Relaxed education combined with rigorous social activities."
Bud Porter: "Casual consumption of knowledge, intense consumption of beverages."
Michelle Neill: Massive amounts of fun and good times with just a touch of education mixed in.
Hal Odden: "Compared to the Japanese, it's laid back."

The Visually Unpleasant Club

Bottom row: Amy "Hear no evil" Chase, Karen "Look what I had for lunch" Garber, and Michelle "Anyone for a hat dance" Neill.
Top row: Lisa "Hey Baby" Kingsbury, Rob "Freddie" Mutzl, Brian "Little Devil" Knadle, and Jill "Anyone for a game of tennis?" Tolley. Masks courtesy of Boswells.

Mr. Grotegut: "We think we can get anything we want anytime we want."
Nason Hoyt: "It's relaxed, intense, loving, sensual, romantic, and edible."
Greg Gordon: The same as Nason Hoyt.
Karma Anderson: "People here seem more carefree, even the teachers and it's not as strict as my old school."
Suzy Fritz: "Everyone's competing for everything."
Karma Notis: "We like people with good attitudes."
Chris Exner: "Sometimes we try too hard to win."
Dave Peck: "We like to be the best."
Mar'Ris Newingham: "We're one of the friendlier schools."
Beth Harris: "We take things as they come, no major deal."

J.P. Jones: "Given their environment, I find their attitudes healthy. Given the reality of the world their attitudes might not work."
David Schugert: "M.V. has a very competitive attitude in sports."
Brian Saenger: "I think we're just normal kids."
Mindy Palmer: "We have spirit."
Anonymous: "Drugs, sex, rock-n-roll, and money."
Amy Arnett: "It depends on what kind of car you drive." (hee-hee)
Marcia Brady: "It's really groovy."
Fred Flintstone: "Dinosaurs are people too; Freshmen are the real animals."
Peggy M. Stressin: "People worry too much."
Andy Willett: "What M.V. attitude?"
Jim Gillespie: "Surf's up!"

A PLETHORA OF POEMS

Ethiopia

by Chad Hamill

Winds blowing
Through the air tonight
The clouds capture the moon
The nights only light

In the sky, see it,
The red faced man is Laughing
At the sound of wind not heard,
A stream that runs to nowhere
And nowhere is here

And still the world turns
The candle flickers and
Oh it burns
One more child dies;
Oh the skies a fire

Through the window
I see a star
Its witnessed all of the pain
Of afar
And slowly
It begins to Fade . . .

Where eagles fly
Rain falls
From the sky

Where fields lay
All hope is Stripped away

This sun drenched moon
Hears the cries from
The children
Fate's too soon

It's a nameless day;
When angels cry

On white mountain
I see a man
He stands alone

He say,
Feed me
Nurture me . . .

In green fields
The bull he walks so proud

Alone

by Julie Trent

What does the word mean?
People want to be alone when they have too much around them.
but what about the people who are

Alone,

by themselves, and can't control it?
do they feel

Alone?

or do they know they are

Alone?

How can I feel

Alone

When I have so many friends,
So much to do,
"So much going for me?"

What does the word really mean?

Alone.

I DO MY BEST TO SMILE

by Scott Camp

I saw a girl that I used to know nothing has stayed the same the look in her eye has turned so dull didn't think it would ever change.

Now I know I take things too serious
so I do my best to smile
But my mind is troubling me and my heart aches all the while

Sometimes you've got to sacrifice the things you want and need and keep your sanity instead and keep living reluctantly

So remember if you see that girl look her in the eye and tell her something that I said
tell her I said good-bye

Friends Forever

by Erica Roberts

Friends Forever was said from the start
Realizing now it was straight from the heart
I never really know
Even to this day, just how our friendship could possibly slip away
Now its not over, at least not yet; We need
Determination and loving care and then we will be set,
Sorry is not a word right now, for its neither of our fault.

Faith is stored now like money in a vault
Our day to day conquests
Really keep us on the run;
Everybody knows friendships aren't always fun.
Very hard we'll try not to keep us friends so true
Entering this new challenge I'll work as hard as you.
Remembering our happy times, I know we'll make it through, Just always remember I Love You.

Thank You for Being That Special Friend

by Wendy Coelho

I have never found a friend who quite cares so much inside.
I have never found a friend
who can burst up a persons pride
I have never found a friend who takes so much time to understand, or to be there to lend a helping hand.

I have never found a friend who shares their feelings with such emotion.
I have never found a friend
who gives so much time and devotion.
I have never found a friend who knows what I'm feeling
Or to strengthen me when my heart need healing
Then one day
I met that friend.
/and I knew right from the start-
That this person cared deep down from within the heart.
Thank you, my friend
For always being there.
There is a special place in my heart,
That we will always share.

Forever

by Michelle Neill

I love you more than life itself he declared
And she believed him
You are my life he said
And she believed him
I couldn't live without you he stated
And she believed him
You are the most special person in the world he wrote
and she believed him
Then one day he came to her and said
It's over; I've found someone else
But she didn't believe him
So she went over to his house
And found them doing something that the two of them had never
So this is why you left me she cried
And he just sat there
Then she turned and fled
From the horrible sight before her eyes
She cried all night
Then she said I hate him
And she believed herself

NO TIME FOR COMPLAINTS

Although this years' La Vista staff has tried their best to accomplish the impossible and complete the book without one single error or missing one single event, I don't think we did it. Therefore, if you have any complaints, we are willing to listen to them, but only if you read this over and direct your complaints to the correct person.

The Senior section was put together by Laura Ferrara. She did an excellent job in compiling everything despite the fact that she had no previous yearbook experience which is exactly what she will say to you if you dare to complain to her about that section. Now that you know what she is going to say, there really is not any need for you to complain, now is there?

The Underclass section was headed by Meredith Furtney, who will be less than willing to listen to your complaints since she had absolutely no help in completing any of the deadlines. Why don't you talk to Chris "Bartles" Leavell, Kara Thacker, Julie Harryman, or Richard "Oh she's gorgeous" Spector instead?

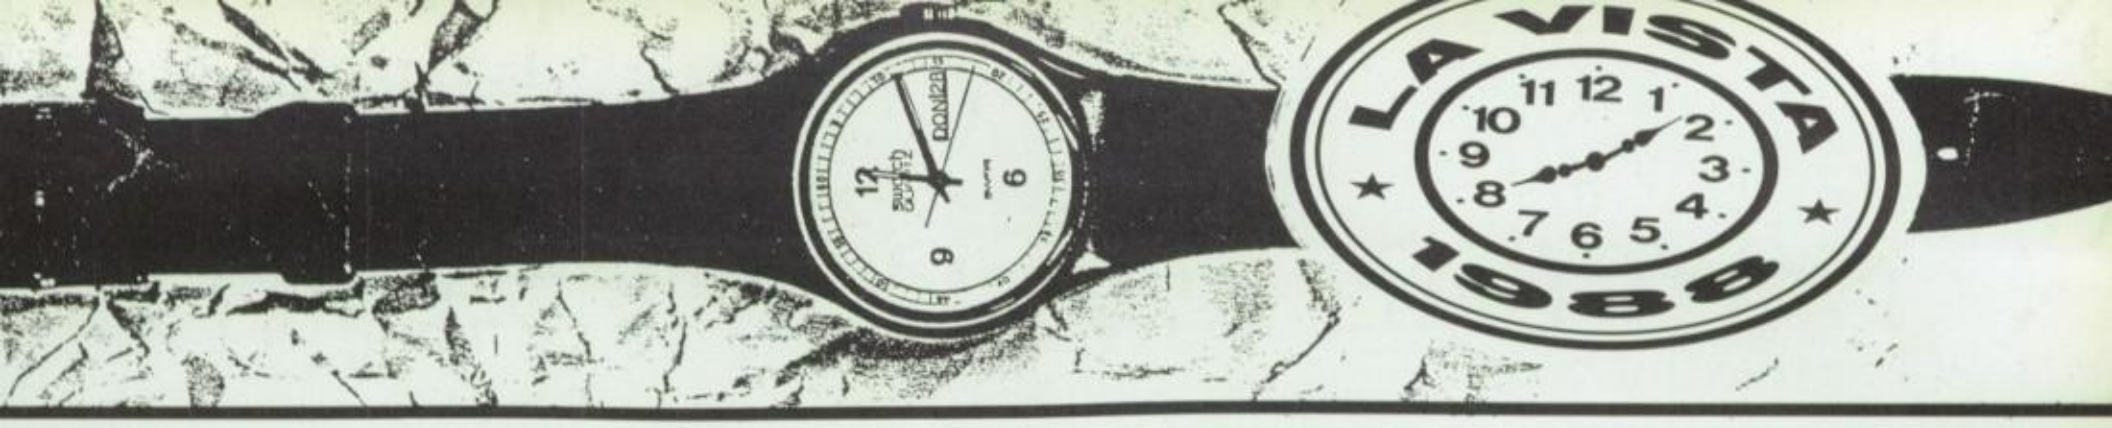
If your complaint is about the Sports section, please take it to the top. Write a letter to our publishing company, Herff Jones, and ask them to make later deadlines for Monte Vista so that the Sports section can be better. Of course, before you do that, you should consider the fact that later deadlines will make the book be delivered sometime in late August. but if you do not mind waiting, go ahead and write- they would love to hear from you.

If you have a specific complaint about the Sports section, say the design of the whole thing, then you can take your complaint to someone else. You can take it to either Ally "I'm Done" Kolb or to Brian " Whose buns are those" Knadle-our vote for couple of the year.

But, if you just do not like the copy for the Sports section, talk to Gavin "Curtis Has It" Havrilenko. He will do more than listen to your complaints, he will explain in great detail how it was not his fault for anything wrong in the copy. How could it be his fault? All he did was write it!

Michelle Neill and Michelle Baskes were responsible for just about all other copy in the book. Ms. Neill writes about . . . lets say very different subjects, like rear ends. While Ms. Baskes is more concerned with the alarming increase of locker abuse here at M.V.



The dividers and mini dividers were created by Mindy Roberts but I don't think that she will listen to your complaints because she sees no evil, hears no evil . . .

David Weiss was in charge of the ads, and if you can find him, you can complain to him. But don't even bother looking in the Yearbook room because he is never there.

Lisa Kingsbury headed the Student Life section, but don't be too hard on her. After all, she stressed every deadline for you. And what does she get in return? A complaint- now that's gratitude. If you really feel the need to complain tell Gia Beem or Kim Martin.

If you have any complaints about the type, or the index talk to Curtis Chipley, but be nice to him . . . he's such a good guy.

As for the Mini-Mag, Jill Tolley compiled that section with a lot of input from Mr. Breuer, Rob Mutzlandmyself,KarenGarber. But don't waste your time complaining to her for she will simply reply, "Why don't you try dealing with Breuer, pleasing the editor and compromising with the assistant editor all at the same time for a year?"

As for the photography, please, oh pretty please, complain to Corey Dwan who never could shoot anything less than convenient or Alex Wong who never wanted to shoot anything. Drew Cheng, on the other hand, is to be worshipped for all the hard work and great photography that he contributed.

If the printing is poor, complain to Lisa Constanzo or Amy Chase. Both would be more than willing to show you how difficult it is to make good prints from poorly exposed pictures.

And if your sport, club or activity did not get covered, Willie Dejean is the one to talk to. He will be glad to explain what a hassle it is to organize coaches, advisors, students, and, find an able photographer who doesn't have to work, be tutored, or who doesn't have a doctor, dentist, eye or chiropractor appointment.

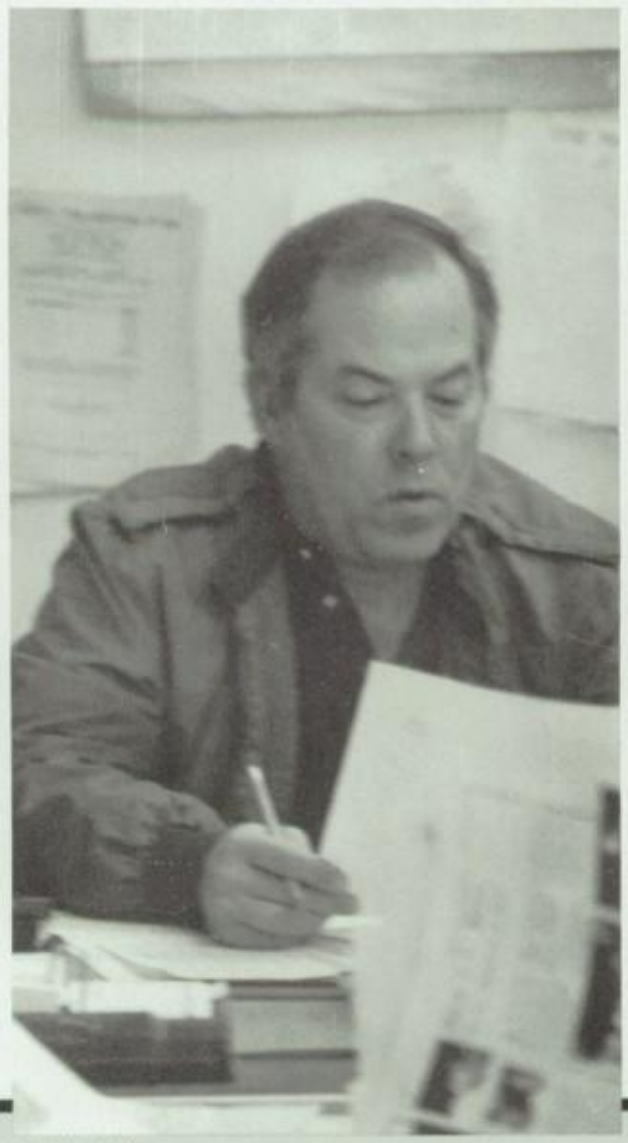
As for any other complaints, they all go to the demanding Editor-In-Chief Rob Mutzl. You can complain to him about anything and for as long as you wish because he has done it to me for the past eight months!

I, Karen Garber, being the Assistant Editor will accept any and all compliments. I refuse to listen to any complaints on the grounds that I have been forced to listen to staff members argue, complain, rationalize, and explain why things got messed up. I'm done with complaints for the year. Now it is my turn to bask in the glory of receiving compliments.

But, as you make your complaints, just try to have a little bit of compassion for the people who made this book. After all, they put a lot of their time and energy into producing it. So if you don't like it, maybe you should do something about it, get involved- join yearbook and try to get an 8x10 picture of yourself on the cover in the process.

By: Karen Garber and Michelle Neill

A special thanks goes to our "substitute" teacher who spent all of second semester with us in Yearbook, proofing, editing, reading copy and correcting mistakes. We really did appreciate it- Thank you so much Mr. Bakker, with love from the whole Yearbook staff.



LA VISTA '88

The Best of Its' Time

Twenty people scurry to and fro. Pencils fly, rulers are thrown and a trash can quickly fills with people's mistakes. No its not a scene out of a madcap movie or t.v. show but a day in room M-6 with the yearbook staff.

As a deadline looms over their heads, the yearbook staff is deceptively calm. Only Mr. Breuer, the frazzled advisor, shows any signs of the upcoming date. Places change as the deadline moves closer,Mr. Breuer becomes calmer and the staff are at each others throats. Finally the deadline has past, the pages are turned in, and things return to normal in room M-6. But wait, the next deadline is around the corner! "Is the work ever over?" groans Kim Martin. No, not until everything is "done-done".

Ally Kolb works on a layout for the sports section after the bell has already sounded.

Michelle Baskes observes Laura Ferrera put together another spectacular layout.

DANCING THE NIGHT AWAY

MV Seniors honored at D.A.

Friday, February 26 is a date that almost all Seniors from Monte Vista, Cal High and San Ramon will remember. The reason is that on that date, the 37th annual Diablo Assembly Dance was held at the Oakland Convention Center.

The D.A. is put on by parents to honor the students that have contributed to their school and is one of the highlights of everyone's Senior year. This year was no exception.

Anthem once again rocked the house with their renditions of hits from the 80's. Along with some help from Jeff Moeller, Dave Bauer and Hilary Sperling who belted out their own version of "You shook me all Night Long" by AC/DC.

The dance ended at midnight, but the night ws still young as many Seniors ended up at parties, restaurants or just driving around the city. All in all, the night was wonderful and thanks to all the hard work that our parents put in we were all able to enjoy ourselves immensely.

Stacey Young and date Mike Matter smile while Deanna Arvizu and Roger Fulop listen to the tunes.

Playoff Berth

First in Ten Years

This years girls Varsity Volleyball team was filled with talent and unity. The key players and starters Aimee Beth Ogden, Wendy Hartman, Deanna Arvisu, Leann Couch, and Captains Stacey Youngand Jodianne Beeson were all united and determined to win.

Coach Hitomi stated, "The girls fought hard all year. They practiced like they played in matches, 'tough'. These girls are the future section champs."

This year was the best year the girls volleyball team has had since the forming of the new E.B.A.L. The girls clinched a playoff birth for the first time in ten years, and overall had an extremely successful season.

"We had fun and worked hard too," said Coach Hitomi. "I think everyone learned a lot about the togetherness a team must have.

Standout player Stacey Young has been all-league the last three years.

1) Laura Ferrera makes a save against Foothill.

2) Jodianne Beeson leaps up for the kill.

This years Varsity Volleyball Co-Captains areStacey Youngand Jodianne Beeson Stacey and Jodi have both played a big role on Monte Vista Volleyball teams.

Stacey was selected for two All-league teams in the E.B.A.L. Jodianne has been a great team asset in the past three years. Their sheer determination and hard work has made them true champions.

Best J.V. Ever
In the History of M.V.

As the season began, the junior varsity team had a good starting lin e up with Missy Jersild, Julie Harryman, Kim Archibald, Susan Settle, Amy Arnett and Sandy Eddy. Talented newcomers included Jill Polosky, Tiffany Turner, Jocele Wang, Margie Milbler, and Kathy Fortuin.

Coached for the second year by Richard Grotegut and assisted by new coach Linda Draper the Mustangs beat San Ramon and ranked in the top three in the EBAL. Both of these accomplishments were a first in ten years.

Along with returning captain Amy Arnett the JV team voted in Julie Harryman making two captains. This was Amy's third year on the JV team and Julie's second. Both junior splayed off season ball to improve the team with some experienced leadership.

Stangs Run Into Tough Competition

It was a competitive season in E.B.A.L Cross Country for Monte Vista runners. Coaches Randy Knudson and Jan Ohem enjoyed the team's enthusiasm.

Leading the mens varsity to victory were senior Jim Woodley, and Greg Crosley, junior Mark Conrad and sophomores Peter Faeth and Rob Minera. They finished fifth in the league meet. The team is still young and expects to do well next year.

This years girls team was missing depth, but always tried to do their best. They won their invitational and finished fifth overall. Varsity was lead by Senior Shana Seifert , and juniors Tracey Gleason, and Valerie Powell.

Cross Country

Greg Crosley is an outstanding run- ner who earned 8 varsity letters in track/cross country.

"Greg always has a positive attitude and is always striv- ing to become a better runner," said Knudson.

Outside school, Crosley participates in triathlons. The most recent was at Catalina Island, which he placed 40th out of 400 and 1st in his age division.

24 Hr. Relay

Once every year, during the fall sports season, you may see tents propped up on the football field and Monte Vista students running around the track all day long. This is the Cross Country team and annually they have a twenty four hour relay. Frosh/Soph, J.V and Varsity all participate in the fundraiser. The money goes towards into new uniforms, banners, stopwatches, and other needed equipment. This year they ran from 3:32 p.m., September 24 to 3:32 p.m. September 25, and they ran a total of 210 miles and collected $275.00.

Season Ends in Controversy

Wolves line call still questionable

It came down to the last match as is the norm when M.V. faces San Ramon. The Wolves were ahead 5-4 in the third set with Kris Knudson serving at ad-out. That point ended with Knud son's doubles partner, Lisa Cote hitting a high backhand volley into the corner. San Ramon's Denise McCarthy did not go after the ball and did not appear to make a call. McCarthy looked at her doubles partner, Carrie Millinich after about a 10-15 second pause, they called it out.

Knudson said, "I thought the ball was in. When they were both in doubt and they are both not sure, they shouldn't take the point."

Despite debate and controversy, M.V. had a good season. Their over all record was 12-2 with only losses to a talented San Ramon team.

Coach Gail Roll commented, "It's a pleasure to coach these kids. They are all extremely talented and hard working."

Outside of school, Julie has earned a Northern California ranking of 5 in the under 16 division. Her high ranking qualified her for Nationals in West Virginia, which she placed fifth. She will return next year and try to capture her third E.B.A.L title.

Finish Season Strong

Led by Sophomore Quarterback Lane Hale the J.V. Mustangs had a successful season finishing with an overall 9-1 record and a share of the E.B.A.L. title. Their only loss came at the hands of a tough Granada team who tied them for the league championship. After this loss, however, the Mustangs regrouped and came back to finish the season strong. The passing attack was strong with Lane Hale's favorite targets being tight and Chris Gunnarson and wide receiver Chris Wallace.

Mike Drue led the team in rushing and motivated palyers with his sheer determination. Matt Proctor, and Jason Quast also ran hard for the herd.

Overall record of 9-1 was achieved through long hard hours of practice. Coaches Craig Condon, Mike Maxwell, and Jay Martinovich pushed the gridders to their limits as they knew hard work would earn them a title.

Their defense was known to stick opponents, and gave up very few points. The "D" was led by linebackers Mike Dunn and Chris Gunnarson who hit hard all year.

J.V. team was talented but they mostly relied on perserverance and dedication. This earned them respect around the league.

FROSH FOOTBALL

SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Center: Coach Joe Kusak

As expected the Frosh Football team was full of talent and unity. Under First year head coach Joe Kusak and Assistants Keith Broaders and Dave Kravitz, the frosh team showed they could play inspirational football all year as they compiled a 5-2 record and won the jamboree at the beginning of the year.

The offense was led by Kyle Branum the team's M.V.P. who ran over players and came up with the big plays during critical times. Todd Higley was the other tough running back and Peter Steppe aired it out for the 'Stangs at quarterback.

On defense Tom Byrns and Jason Beem filled the gaps and hit hard all year. The "D" played solid and didn't give away any easy points.

Overall, the Frosh learned a lot about what M.V. Football is all about. They had their first experience as Mustangs and they will only get better. The future only looks brighter and soon enough these athletes will be carrying on the Championship tradition of Monte Vista Football.

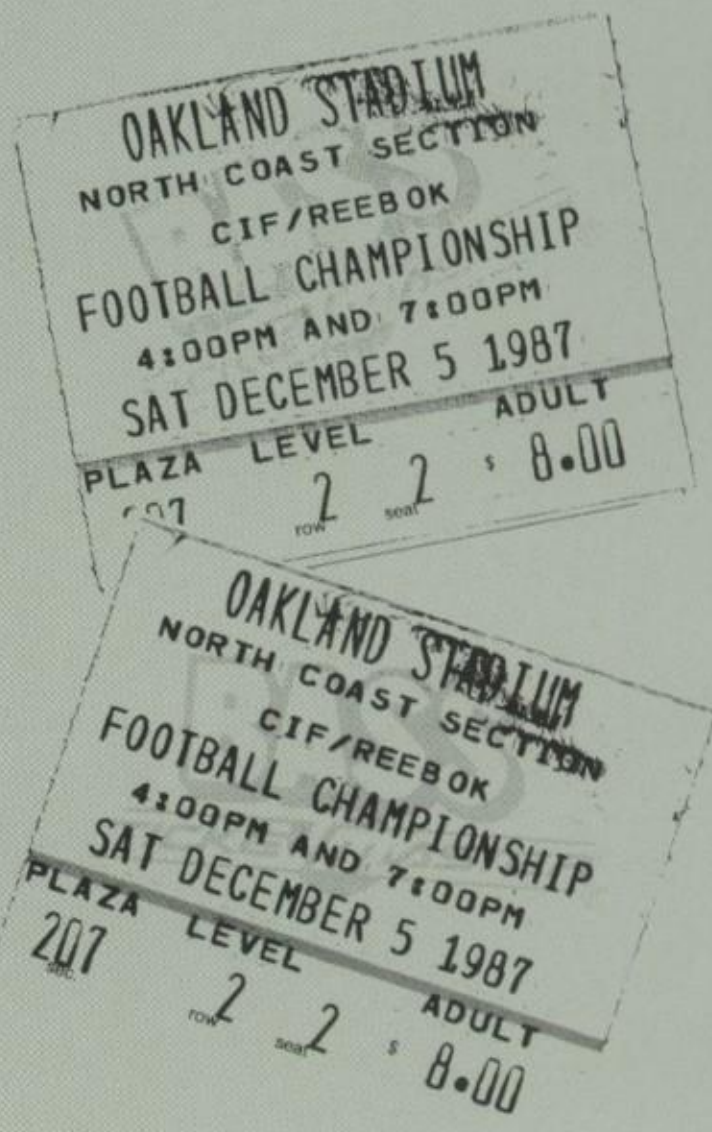
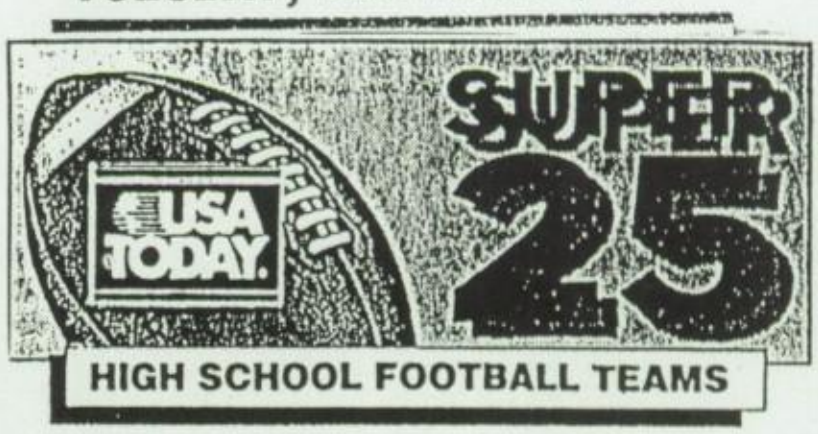
TWAS THE NIGHT BEFORE N.C.S.

Twas the night before NCS, when all through the Coliseum
All the Mustangs were stirring, the fans were coming to see 'um,
The banners were hung from the rafters with care,
In hope that Monte vista soon would be there;
The Ponies were nestled all snug in there beds,
While visions of touchdowns danced in their heads;
With coaches in their sweat pants and players in their pads,
We just hit out brains out, what studs! EGADS!
When out on the turf there arose such a clatter,
Mustangs stuck Spartans and watched them all splatter.
Away to the sidelines Stang flew like a flash;
They pounded on Spartans, they treated them like trash!
The moon and the rest of the Coliseum glow,
Gave the luster of victory to the Mustangs below.
When what to my wondering eyes should I see
But 40 Stud Mustangs led by a man named Stewie,
With wiley old coaches so lively and quick,
I knew in a moment the Mustangs would stick!
More rapid than eagles their coursers they came,
They whistled and shouted and called them by name;
"Now, Zeising! Now, Coleman! Now, Gavro and Colby!
On, Abrams! On, Wachner! On, Gilkison and Louie!
Over the top of the line, no drive will ever stall;
Now pound away, pound away, pound away all!"
So up past the goal line the Mustangs they flew;
With a team full of hitters and Barraclough too!
And then in a twinkling I heard on the turf,
The prancing and pawing of each giant hoof!
As I drew in my head and was turning around,
Down through the middle came Bam-Bam with a touchdown.
They were dressed in all red from their heads to their foot!
And their uni's were tarnished with old Spartan soot!
A bundle of boys Shad and Gounie knocked on their backs,
And Conrad and Orca each adds ten sacks!
The Spartans they twinkled, their dimples how merry!
They looked so like dodos it was kind of scarey!
Their droll little mouths were drawn up like an O;
And their scared faces were pale and white as the snow!
The stump of their mouth pieces held tight in their teeth,
The Stangs had encircled them like a red funeral wreath!
The Stangs had Qutami with a big round belly;
That shook when he ran gassers like a bowl full of jelly.
Knadle wasn't chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf;
But hit like a truck in spite of himself.
Of the fire in their eyes and the fury in their head;
Stang fans now knew, there was nothing to dread.
They spoke not a word but went straight to their work,
They let the Spartan mouth off and look like a jerk!
The Stangs reach the end zone, 50 points the scoreboard shows,
But on the DLS side a big zero glows.
As time slipped away the Refs gave a whistle,
And the Stangs flew down field like the down from a thistle.
But I heard them exclaim as they rode out of sight,
"It's our 5th NCS — AND WE'RE CHAMPIONS TONIGHT."



TUESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1987



20 Danville, Calif. Monte Vista (13-0)

Last week: Not ranked. Broke Concord De La Salle's 44-game winning streak 14-13 before 13,000 to win North Coast Section title. Steve Abrams ran for 101 yards and TD and was in on 14 tackles. Chris Musseman had 39-yard TD run on fake punt.

CHAMPIONS 1987

If you believe it you can achieve it, we believe; was the quote the team referred to all week preparing for the game. When the bus went over the overpass and the Oakland Coliseum came into view. The team believed that tonight was their night. December 5, 1987 is a night that will go down in the history of Monte Vista Football as being the greatest victory ever. Beating De La Salle high school 14-13, stopping a 44 game win steak, and avenging a 1986 coliseum loss. The mustangs had captured their fourth N.C.S. victory in seven years.

The First half was a even deadlock at 0-0. It was a defensive game with little offense. In the second half DLS scored first on a 20 yard pass. Then MV made a long drive ending with Steve Abrams scoring from 12 yards out. The next score confused us all. Chris Musseman took a fake punt from 39 yards out for the score. The Mustangs scored when Stewart Hansen pitched the ball to Kristian Hansen who threw back to Stewart. The score read 14-7 and DLS made a great drive to score. They chose to go for the two point conversion. Brad Heyde pitched the ball to Rob Forester. He ran for the corner of the end zone where Steve Abrams knocked him out of bounds just short of the goalline with 1:19 remaining. DLS attempted an onside kick that was recovered by Pat Lewis.

As the seconds ticked off the clock, a shocking miracle had come for the players, coaches, parents, cheerleaders, students and the bay area. Hundreds of fans ran down on the field, for the celebration. And the celebration moved to the high school, where hundreds of fans welcomed home the bus load of NCS Champs.

If you Believe it, You can Achieve it We Believe it!

Team Bounces Back

This year's Boys Varsity Soccer team was full of talented young men who showed pride in their sport. Zach Taylor, and Chris Musseman, both juniors, play soccer at the National Level and helped this year's team with valuable experience and perseverance. Senior standouts were Dave Bauer, Gregory Lungsford, and Barry Rosenbaum and were all powerful forces as well.

Junior, Chris Heggen also had a strong impact. The team showed great effort by bouncing back after a slow start and gaining respect around the league.

Head coach Figueroa kept the boy's in good shape and on top of their games. Unique play's kept M.V.'s opponents off balance and unprepared.

The team fared well and the out look for next year should be even brighter and more impressive. Next year's team was a lot to live up to. This 1988 team showed that success comes from hard work, beyond God given talent.

Zack Taylor was easily the most talented and respected player on this years varsity soccer team. His skill and determination shined through in league as he simply ran past defenders. Furthermore his national experience showed to be a valuable asset to the team. Zack still has next year to show off his talents.

Unity
JV Soccer

The Boys' JV soccer team had an outstanding year by not using the word individualism. They were a perfect example of a team and they showed their effort in every game.

John Isom and David Hartman were the team leaders and positive examples. They showed leadership and teamwork, which the rest of the team followed.

The coaches enjoyed leading the players and said they had good attitudes and great talent. They all have bright futures and they could be the key to an excellent varsity soccer team in the years to come.

Jon Isom, an eye-opener on the JV Boys' soccer team stood out above the rest with his fancy footwork. He proved that he could be a future stand-out and possibly one of the most dedicated players on the team. This determination will bring him far in his sport.

Winning Continued

Carolyn Spencer fought back from a knee injury that kept her out for a period of weeks. She knew she still had the talent and determination but she would have to work twice as hard. She dedicated her life to becoming a competitive soccer player and she learned a great lesson in perseverance. Her hard work and talent was a definite plus to the team.

Monte Vista's Girls Varsity Soccer team was full of talent, youth, and tenacity. Sue Lewis brought the varsity team up from last to 2nd place in league over the past four years.

This year's team was led by four super senior players, sweeper Marianne Winter, center halfback Carolyn Spencer, and the outside halfbacks Delna Balsara,andSamiKealy. M.V.'s starting fullbacks, juniors Ally Kolb, Carrie Koeper, and Sophomore Anne McConnahay hardlyeverlet any balls get by the talented sophomore goalie Alisa Mutzl. The offense was led by sophomore sensations Katie Anderson and Lisa Cote, both returning all E.B.A.L. team players as are Marianne and Carolyn. The teams goal this year was beating last year's undefeated team from Granada and to return to the NCS playoffs for the 2nd year in a row.

Off And Winning

Enthusiasm promoted improvement

Led by Tracey Gleason, Amy Beth Ogden, Katie Green and Julie Knadle, this year's Girl's J.V. Soccer team showed enthusiasm and willingness to improve. Beating one of the top flight teams in the league, Foothill (2-0), the girls got off to a great start and didn't slow down.

Newly acquired Coaches Linda Draper and Julie Burns showed great promise in some outstanding coaching. The players got along well with these two coaches which made success come even easier. The outlook for the next few seasons looks great for the girl's soccer teams. These junior varsity players will be a great asset on the varsity team next year.

Coach Linda Draper said, "These girls are a great group to work with. "They all have a great future."

Coach Draper

Tracey Gleason was the catalyst on this year's girls j.v. soccer team. She showed leadership and enthusiasm that influenced teammates all year. Despite being short and thin, she had plenty of heart and determination. She was optimistic about tough opponents and lead the team to victories that were not expected. She proved that it takes guts to be successful.

Varsity

Considering that the boy's wrestling team faced a huge loss with the departure of Coach Matthew Wurzel, it bounced back under the direction of new coach Randy Knudson.

With returning four year varsity lettermen Trevor Hall, and Gary Gilkison, the team showed they had the weapons to live up to Monte Vista's tough wrestling tradition. Sean Peters and Kevin Conrad also showed their intensity on the mat. Sean was forced to wrestle in the heavyweight class but wasn't afraid of some opponents who outweighed him 50-100 lbs. Kevin used his strength from football to down opponents on the mat.

The accomplishment of another successful season dawned and the coaching switch only made the guys want to wrestle even more and train harder. Wrestling is an individual sport, but it takes a team effort to win a match, and the guys pulled it together and showed their unity and dedication.

Trevor Hall has continued the tradition of tough wrestlers in his family. His older brother was an all-league selection and he has achieved the same distinction. Although a lightweight. Trevor is anything but light in his strength and takedowns. He also is a four year letterman and a valuable addition on the team.

Gary Gilkison is small in size but he has proved through hard work, that size doesn't matter. Being a started on N.C.S. championship football team, proved he had all-around athletic ability. A four year letterman, Gilkison has taken down his opponents quite often. He has been a key building block the last 4 years in the wrestling program.

Junior Varsity

Under the direction of new head coach Randy Knudson, the J.V. wrestling team gave new meaning to the word tough. They started off timid and you could see the trepidation in their eyes, but they soon realized that the only fear was fear of the unknown. They soon improved their attitudes and began to fight like wild Mustangs. The up and coming team with Jonathan Peters as one of the standouts, was more than willing to improve themselves.

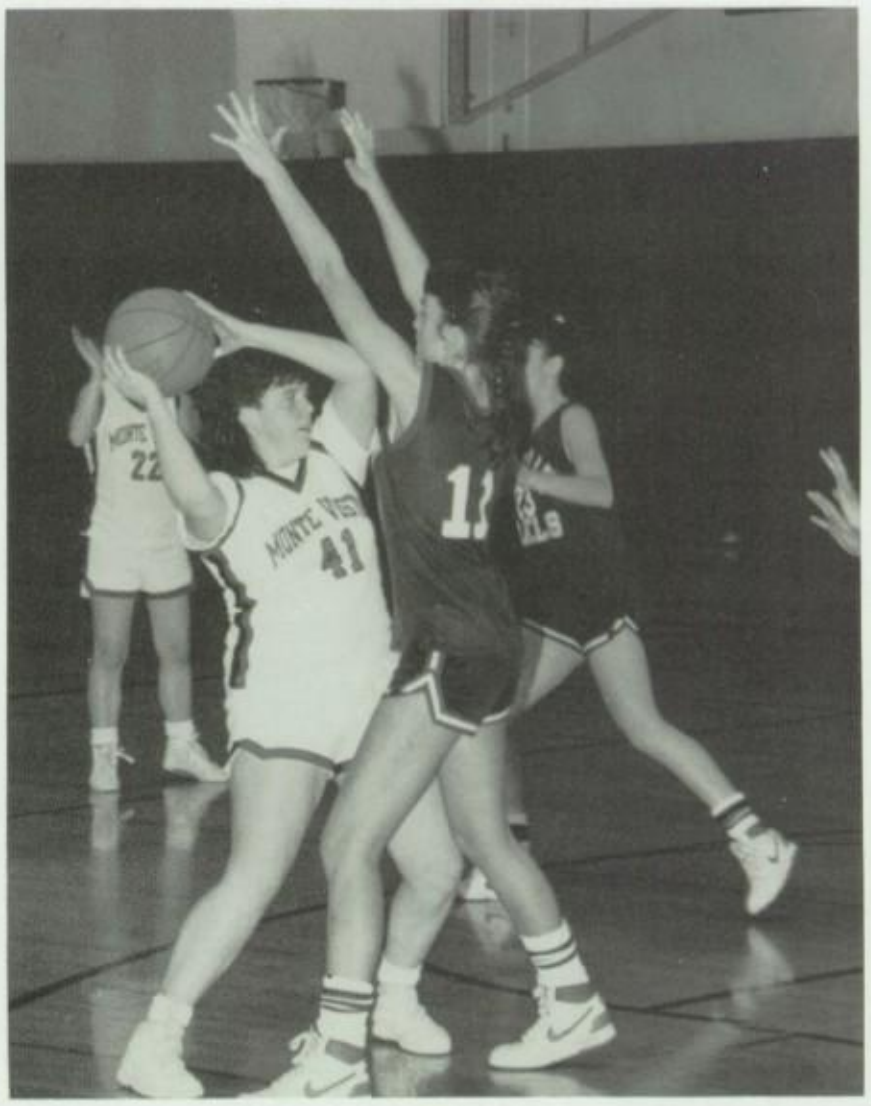
The team was inexperienced, but were excited about what a learning experience they would have. They showed their enthusiasm on the mat, in matches, as their skill and technique shined through. They never looked back and kept striving to improve.

Courage and Pride
Keep Team Alive

This year coach Richard Grotegut figured out early that it would take a lot of work to be successful in a tough league. With Karen McIntyre having to sit most of the year out, the Mustangs lost a lot of depth from last years team.

The girls' strived to give 100% during the practices and games, keeping their heads high through the long, tough season.

Hilary Flood was one of the tempo-setters on this year's team. She led the team when they needed the support. The team was united and hard working despite the setbacks which they experienced. This is a sign of a true Monte Vista team. Courage and pride kept the girls enthusiastic about their improvement all year, and if you went to one of their games you could tell the girls were having fun.



Hilary Flood, the 5'3" second year varsity point guard on the girls basketball team showed leadership of and encouragement to the other players. She was the driving force on this year's team and her determination kept the girls excited about playing and enthusiastic about improving their team.

JV Shows Potential

Up and Coming Stars

The up and coming girls J.V. basketball team showed promise and potential as they proved they are the future varsity stars that will only improve the girls basketball program.

Kathy Fortuin was a tough player who was characterized as having great moves and intelligent play. Her determination helped the J.V. team establish a solid offense and some tough defensive play. Tiffany Turner also turned in some outstanding performances. Jenny Shimirak was a top scorer on the team and will be a force as she keeps improving. The girls were a strong team in league and if they continue their success they will eventually achieve whatever they really want to.

Strong Season

Varsity Basketball

Considering the Boy's Varsity Basketball team got off to a slow start because of the key players still involved in N.C.S. football the team came together quickly and finished strongly. Players like Stewart Hansen, Kristian Hansen, Dave Zeisling all contributed in the N.C.S. football victory and then had to quickly change their thoughts to the up and coming basketball season.

Tom Newman, the key man in the Mustangs scoring attack was concentrating on basketball all year and took off once the season began. [Newman was poised and on target from both inside and long range.] Junior sensation Russ Vrankovich starting net to Newman is a force himself. The team had great depth and Brian Church, Mike Goralski, Chad Jackson, Kristian Hansen and John Steineke all came on strong off the bench.

Chris Ring and Dave Zeising were strong rebounders, post-up men who worked hard in the paint.

Led by 3rd year head coach Bob Gallo, the varsity really joined together and worked hard as a team. Coach Gallo emphasized discipline and the team showed this in crucial times during big games.

Tom Newman and Stewart Hansen were the captains of this year Varsity. Both stood tall in leadership and perseverance. Tom and Stew, both seniors, were big play men and got the ball during crunch time. Tom Newman iced the victory over arch rival SR with 19 points and putting in the game winner.

Boys Varsity Basketball players include: Mike Goralski, Brian Church, Russ Vrankovich, Stewert Hansen, Chris Ring, Tom Newman, Chad Jackson, Bill Healy, Dave Zeising, Kristian Hanson, John Steineke

Winning Season

J.V. Basketball

The boys j.v. basketball team was a powerhouse in the league this year. Brian Hansen was the team leader and point guard for the boy's team. He was the tempo and play setter. Other standouts were starters Mike Austin, Jeff Bruce, Sean Sladek, and Andrew Williamson.

The team was aggressive and determined to achieve their full potential. Coach Jeff Corey enjoyed working with these determined kids. They can be compared with some of the great teams of Monte Vista's past. Shawn Sladek and Mike Austin were the scoring machines as they took the ball to the hoop and capitalized on opponents defensive errors. Steve Fineberg and Craig Beattie were strong off the bench and gave the team depth and great rebounding. The team excelled and reached for the sky. They will be a bright spot at Monte Vista.

Starting Out

Frosh Basketball

The Boy's Frosh Basketball team got their first taste of High School Basketball and made it a learning experience. The team was devoted to improvement and concentrated on the basics.

Coach Richard Jones had the tough job of molding the boys and developing their talents. He enjoyed coaching these young kids and teaching them the ropes. He stated, "We have no single star on this team, our talent is spread out, and everyone is anxious to contribute!"

The team was characterized by steady, tough play, especially in clutch situations.

Chris Gambs, and Corey Asbell were two players who took it to the hoop during the crucial "crunch time."

The year was a successful one with the frosh gaining experience that will be essential in the future. The team will only improve during the next few seasons.

This year's Boys track team once again carried on the tradition of Monte Vista excellence with another successful season. Lead by returnees Greg Crosley, Joe Stupfel, Steve Abrams and Schon Branum, the Mustangs ran circles around the opponents. The Herd of 'Stangs showed their dominance throughout the league. Long distance specialist Greg Crosley, proved to be the number one distance runner on the team. Peter Faith and Mark Conrad also gave the Mustang's extra depth in this position. Coaches Ken Brooks, Gene Brown and Burt Duncan were optimistic about the team's chances. The 'Stangs were led by Chris Antone at hurdles, Joe Stupfel and Steve Abrams at sprints. Omar Tijero was outstanding in the jumps (long and triple) as was Damon Casparian in the high jump.

Steve Abrams is this year's best sprinter on M.V.'s Varsity team if not in the league. He was a member of the state qualifying 440 relay team last year and is a favorite to win the 100 and 200 in this year's league meet. Steve should also be a strong anchor on this year's 440 relay team.

Doug Byrkit, a junior on this year's varsity track team should be a strong candidate to capture top honors in the EBAL shot-put and discus competitions. A victory in these events at the varsity level would match Doug's Frosh-Soph accomplishment at last years league meet. Byrkit a well-rounded trackster, is expected to develop into an excellent decathlete during his career at Monte Vista.

GIRLS TRACK

Coach Duncan

Gene Brown

This years girls track team consisted of a great deal of youth and talent. The majority of the team were freshman, but there were a few returning standouts. The sprinters were the strongest part of the girls team, led by two of the fastest girls in the league, Jenny Stupfel, and Julie Crew. They usually finished first or second, in the meets. In middle distances, Shana Seifert was one of the many assets of the team. In long distances, Valerie Powell was usually ahead of the pack. Marybeth Callahan and Ally Kolb excelled in the 110, and 330 hurdles. In the long and triple jump, Kolb was the one to watch as she improved her leaping ability and was a force to be reckoned with.

The girls team has a very bright outlook for the future, as there are many up and coming stars. Coaches Ken Brooks, and Gene Brown feel that the team has unlimited potential.

Shana Seifert, a senior, is M.V.'s number one distance runner, on this year's girls team. She was a strong favorite to place in the top three in league. Her personel best was 5:23. She also has a great half mile time of 2:32 which is one of the top times in EBAL.

Ally Kolb, a junior, is M.V.'s number one triple jumper, long jumper, and hurdler. She won league as a sophomore in the triple jump with a personel record of 37'10". She placed second at NCS, third at MOC, and then advanced to the state meet. She was a strong favorite in this years league meet.

1) Kelley Lewis and Chelsea McNichols sprint to the finish. 2) Coach Brown shows Tracy Jeffers her results. 3) Heather Seifert leads the pack in the 400.

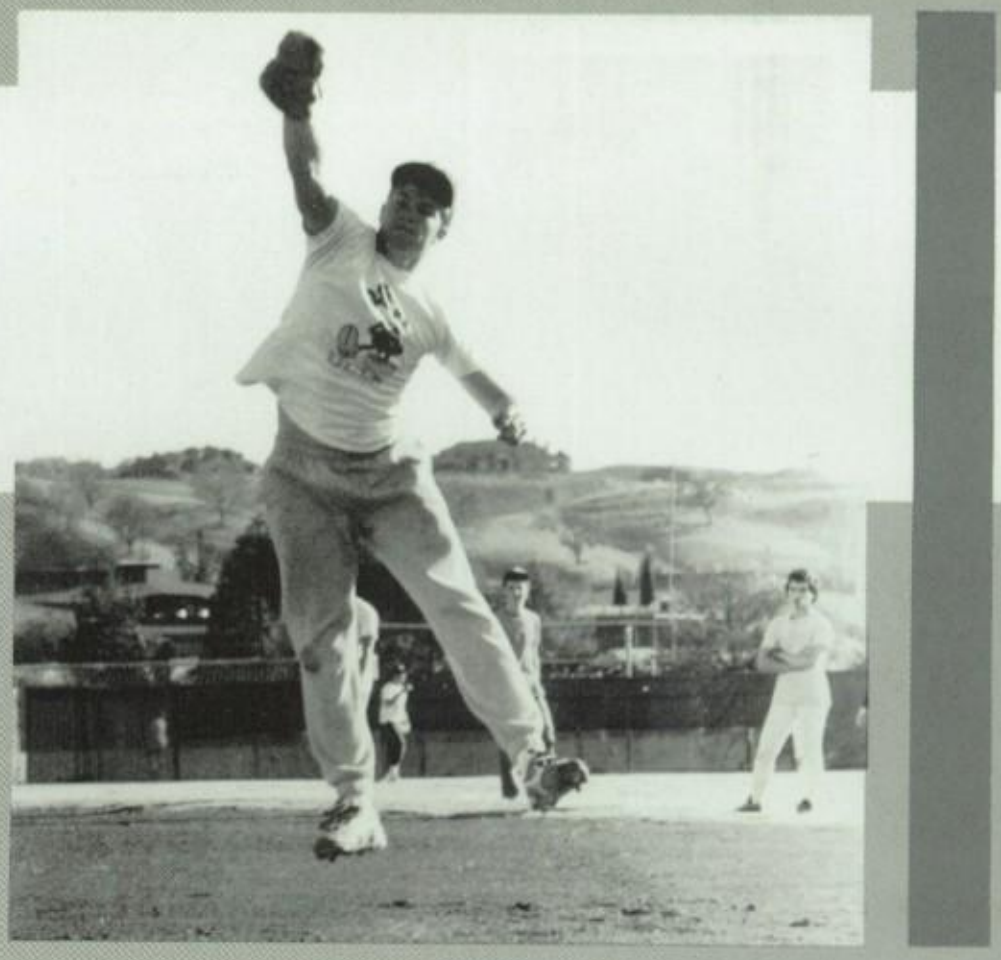
1- Laurie Krech pulls in at the end of her run. 2- Jenny Stupfel sprints to the finish line. 3- Katrina Arber works on her running form.

Girls Track Members Included: Leanne Adair, Shannon Anderson, Katrina Arber, Chris Baker, Roxanne Balsara, Julie Bradford, Amy Byers, Mary Beth Callahan, Cheryl Carstensen, Shannon Christofferson, Julie Crew, Alexandra DeSilva, Kristin Deardorff, Cathy Dong, Kathy Fortuin, Suzie Fritz, Paula Glaze, Tracey Gleason, Alexa Gulliford, Coreen Gunnerson, Julie Harryman, Maria Hoyt, Susan Huddleson, Christine Iriarteborde, Tracy Jeffers, Shelly Kamerer, Ally Kolb, Laurie Kreck, Karin Krieve, Julie Lubking, Chris Marasco, Jennifer Matthews, Chelsea McNichols, Tracy Morrow, Carmen Otis, Laura Powell, Valerie Powell, Chris Prigmore, Kristin Prouty, Anne Roskovensky, Shana Seifert, Geralee Shimirack, Kristy St. John, Jenny Stupfel, Kiran Syed, Leslie Tucker, Emily Vineyard, Lori Washington, Michelle Zacharatos, Kim Martin.



Taking It Home

Varsity Baseball

Monte Vista's new Varsity coach Bill Piona helped take the team to new heights as they captured the hearts of all Monte Vistans. Coach Piona decided to accept the head coaching position for Monte Vista after being the assistant coach at Cal High last year.

Returning players, such as Pat Lewis, Jim Coleman, Trent Strickland and Steve Carter continued the Monte Vista tradition of winning seasons. They added the experience that M.V. needed as well as the ability to lead the underclassmen through the tough, close ball games.

Two juniors, Nason Hoyt and Allen Blair, brought a fresh attitude and plenty of ability to the '88 Varsity. Both young men contributed to this year's team and should be an integral part of next year's team.

This year, Coach Piona can be very proud of his team and its many successes.

Every so often an athlete arrives on the scene who attains a high level of achievement through sheer drive and desire. As a freshman, Pat Lewis was a good baseball player. Not content with being merely good, Pat worked hard the next two years and is now considered the premiere first baseman in the E.B.A.L. Pat Lewis gave notice to the league that this was to be his year by homering in his first game.

Dominant Force

J.V. Baseball

Stressing conditioning and fundamentals, junior varsity baseball coach, Mike Maxwell, led this year's team to another successful season. The hours of practice and hard work paid off as the young hardballers successfully prepared themselves for next year's varsity wars while winning moire than their share of this season's contests.

Displaying talent as well as a passion for the game, Mike Dunn, Steve Boatwright, and Jason Brooksby were team leaders.

Future Stars

Frosh Baseball

New freshmen baseball coach, Beau Smith, welcomed a zealous group of young aspirants to this year's team. Hoping to gain the experience and skills necessary to carry on the MV tradition of quality baseball, the young Mustangs approached the season with eagerness.

The purpose of frosh baseball is two fold — learning the Monte Vista system for winning and actually winning. Led by Chris Gambs and Dwayne Murphy this year's freshmen nine accomplished both objectives.

Varsity and J.V.

For the second year in a row Karyn McIntyre has propelled M.V.'s Varsity softball team to another winning season. Head coach Tom Ladoceur and assistant coach Vic Belifiore had the advantage of having veteran players patroling the infield and most of the outfield. New players Staci Woodrow and Nicole Matthews also made significant contributions to the varsity's success in '88. The Junior Varsity was led to a winning record by pitcher Marianne Makely, Coach J.P. Jones with his assistant Al Makely, agreed that the team did a super job and will be rewarded for their efforts.

Stacey Young says that softball has been fun for the last four years as well as "making me learn how to work with other people not just for self." She has played softball for over thirteen years. She has been the shortstop for M.V.'s Varsity team for the past three years and has produced much of the teams' enthusiasm. She is hoping to receive a softball scholarship from Creighton University in Omaha, Nebraska.

Varsity members include: Lisa Cote, Nicole Matthews, Ann McConnaughey, Alisa Mutzl, Deanna Arvizu, Carrie Koeper, Leean Couch, Jen Craig, Sami Kealy, Kimberly Kissel, Karen McIntyre, Stacy Young, Stacy Woodrow, Jenna Sawson.

The Junior Varsity Players include: Brooke Tessman, Molly McGlynn, Betsy Boettger, Marianne Makely, Hillary Olsen, Trinity Corn, Lisa Grant, Jackie Zelkie, Halani Moss, Debbie Ferstle, Kim Evans, Ashley Fuller, Paula Jenkins, Kris Kissel, Kelly Rundles.

Another of Coach Ladouceur's team leaders was Leean Couch. A three year veteran of the MV softball wars, Leean has played second base and caught for the Mustangs. Known for her determination and drive, Leean Couch has proven herself a valuable contributor to Mustang success.

Swim And Dive

This year's diving and swimming teams were extremely successful. Despite the fact that MV doesn't have a swimming pool, the eagerness and competitiveness to succeed were the teams best qualities.

The Diving team was led by four year varsity letterman Casey Taylor and his sweetheart Anika Dahlstrom. Both were stars and led the team with picture perfect dives.

The swim team was full of talent and perseverance. Kim Pinkard, and the sensational sisters Jennifer and Lori Herzog, were virtually unbeatabie in the girl's events. The boys had great depth with Tim Meany and Bud Porter at the helm. All of these standouts were team swimmers and encouraged the other swimmers. Not having a pool didn't bother the determined and dedicated teams. The water sports at MV have improved greatly in the past few years and this year was one of MV's most impressive seasons.

Members Include: Allison Pash, Jennifer Gray, Lori Herzog, Kim, Pinkard, Todd Garret, John Spade, Kim Lawrence, Jennifer Stuart, Katie Greene, Bud Porter, Jeff Brown, Joanna Strong, Paul Howard, Jamie Green, Ryan Lenhardt, Jennifer Dusey, Heidi Klaoepel, Kim Grehhte, Mark Randango, Kristin Howard, Laura Kilpatrick, Amy LeValley, Jeff Konant, Bob Denithorne, Sean McCoy

Diving Members: Casey Taylor, Anika Dahlstrom, Hilary Marks, Ryan Rhodes, Chris Marquart, Sean Peterson, Justine Raynor

Casey Taylor, a senior on the boy's diving team, has been the most consistent and hard working divers on the '88 team. Casey, who also played strong safety on the 1988 NCS Championship football team, has proven that he is one of the most valuable assets to his team. His 1½ gainer is his most impressive dive.

Kim Pinckard has been dedicated to her sport of swimming since she was a youngster. Her long hours of practice and extra determination, has earned her respect throughout the area. Pinkard has risen to the top by realizing that champions must work harder. She has a chance to be a top swimmer and she is taking advantage of her opportunity.

Dedicated Backstroker shows us her form M.V.'s unknown swimmer attempts to fly away

Bob Roath and Todd Dangott were two of the overpowering forces on this year's golf team. Both four year golfers on the team, their experience and determination rubbed off on other players. Todd was the top player on the ladder and his discipline and golf sense helped the team's success. Bob Roath was dedicated and also worked hard on his game.

FORE!!

Varsity Golf

The golf team was led by Senior golfers, with the latest fashions and style, Todd Dangott, Mike Mann, Bob Roath, Scott Clem, Jim Woodley and Mike Wickman. Other consistent play came from Sophomores Andy Smith, Jeff Hazzard, and Bill EricksonaswellasJuniors billy Martin and Garrett Wilson.

The outlook was great and the team improved with each match. Coach Rob Stockberger, who has always been involved in team sports, is interested in the individuality of golf. The team was highly competitive in the league and N.C.S.

The team adapted quickly to the coaching of Rob Stockberger and has another successful season on the links. The play of several outstanding underclassmen bodes well for the immediate future of MVHS golf.

Another Great Season

Boys Tennis

The boys 1988 tennis team had another awesome season as they dominated their opponents. The tough aggressive playing styles of seniors Gavin Havrilenko, Sam Evans, Graham Miglaw, Steve Squire, Jeff Moeller, Dave Weiss, Jeff Birnbaum, Jason Goldblatt and Jay Tan, intimidated opponents in every match.

The team also featured a number of underclassmen Big Hitters: including Tom Billig and Bruce Dailey.

Success may seem easy for M.V. on the courts but it is in fact, the result of much practice, a lot of determination and natural talent.

The coaching of Mrs. Roll was again phenomenal. Asst. J.V. coach Harry Flanigan's pep talks and his ever so famous pizza nights gave the players extra incentive to crunch opponents.

The team will lose many top singles players because of graduation but new up and coming players should fill the gaps and add new depth.

Top Row: Harry Flanigan, Gavin Havrilinko, Mike Rothschild, Greg Lahti, Graham Miglaw, Steve Squire, Mark Gunderman, Jeff Moellar, Jeff Birnbaum. Middle Row: Ben Williams, Jay Tank, Chris Fisher, Sam Evans, Will Whitehorn, Ken Weyaruch, Bruce Dailey, Brad English, Jason Boblat. Bottom Row: Rob Slyker, John Gelfand, Taylor Jackson, Brad Houseman, Kevin Gregory, Dan Miley, Steve Chang, Jason Fujita, Tom Billig. Not Pictured: David Weiss

Gavin Havrilenko has achieved his success in tennis through long hours and a lot of sweat. "There aren't any secrets that can make you great players, except to pay your dues and concentrate on your game." Gavin has played varsity singles all year and took the E.B.A.L. title last year. It was deserved as he had been playing on varsity for four years.

SUPER-BOWL XXII

The Washington Redskins had an unbelievable victory over the Denver Broncos in SuperBowl XXII this year. Within the first fifteen minutes, Denver led 10-0, and most of the 2,000 plus journalists began to predict a Bronco victory. In one play, Washington was back in the game. USFL refugee, Ricky Sanders ran to the end zone for an 80-yard touchdown, tying a SuperBowl record. Denver went downhill from there. The score was 35-10 at the half.

Washington center Jeff Bostic said, "I've never been in a game where so many things worked so well for an entire period. Almost everything our coaches called worked."

The Redskins started as 3½ point underdogs and finished as SuperBowl champs for the second time this decade. Redskin, Doug Williams, the SuperBowl's first black quarterback, said, "We had a bad first quarter, but the Washington Redskins have been known for being a football team that keeps fighting and eventually comes out on top. The second quarter was probably the best second quarter I've been around."

"It would have been difficult for anyone to beat Washington today." said Denver's Dan Reeves.

You had to be there (or in front of your T.V.) to see the incredible action and drama of the game to believe it.

US JINX

This seems to be a jinxed year for the Americans. Speedskater Dan Jansen fell during the 500- meter race, and again during the 1,000 meter. He had dedicated these winter games to his sister who died of leukemia on Valentine's Day, shortly before he was to race the 500. The only reason he stayed on is because that is what his sister would have wanted him to do.

America's top woman's downhiller, Pam Fletcher, broke her right leg 45 minutes before she was to be the first starter in her race. At the end of her training run, Fletcher collided with a race course volunteer who came through an exit the wrong way. The worst part of the story is that, an hour after the accident occurred, the downhill was postponed due to high winds. Pam Fletcher could have stayed safely in bed.

Things did improve, yet the training, hard work and dedication these athletes have put into these Winter Games for the past four years, accomplished nothing but heartache and pain.

OLYMPICS 1988

The XV Winter Games opened in February of this year in Calgary, Alberta, Canada. The Olympic flame was lit by 12 year-old figure skater, Robyn Perry, representing youth's considerable promise for the future. The US. did not do as well as expected, yet they did set a few records. Eric Flaim won a silver medal for speed skating. He covered 3-¾ laps of the 400-meter track in a world-record time of 1:52.12. He skated past the finish line and then raised his arms in victory. He was the fastest skater in the world for a grant total of six minutes, when he was beaten by East German, Andre Hoffman, with a time 6/100ths of a second faster than Eric.

The U.S. won another medal in speed skating. This time it was a gold in the women's 500-meter event. The United States skater, Bonnie Blair's chances of winning were not good at the race, since East German Christa Rothenburger had already knocked nearly .3 of a second—a big chunk in such a short race—off the world's record. But Bonnie got off to what she described as, "the best start of my life," and skated to a new world's record of 39.10, winning by .02 of a second. It was the first American gold in speed skating since 1980 and Bonnie said, "When I crossed the finish line, I think it was the happiest day of my life. And when they played the national anthem, I think it was the second."

The Olympics is a display of the finest athletes in the world and America did their best and tried their hardest to win. We await the Summer Games in Sequl, Korea, and wish this new group of American athletes all of the luck in the world.

LOCAL HEROES

The 1988 Olympics contains three superb athletes from the Bay Area.

Bonnie Warner, of Palo Alto, posted the best Olympic finish ever for an American luger, male or female. Almost never brushing a wall, she guided her sled to the fastest times in two of the four runs and places second and third in the others. Bonnie was one of three Americans to place in the top eleven, to give the United States its best team showing ever in the event. She finished the four runs in 3 minutes, 3.973 seconds, finishing in sixth place. The best previous American finished in an Olympic luge event was a ninth in the men's doubles in 1984.

Perhaps the most awaited for event was the "Battle of the Brians." Brian Boitano of Sunnyvale, competed with Brian Orser of Canada in men's figure skating. This event consists of three parts: compulsories, and the long and short programs. Both Brians did comparatively well in the first two events, so the competition came down to the long event, where each skater skates an original freestyle program. Both Brian's skated a military-type performance. Boitano skated first to the music from the 1981 movie, "Napolean." He skated a perfect performance and glided off the rink to a standing ovation. Orser skated third, in an almost perfect program, but slipped coming out of a triple-flip jump. The scoring was so close, it called for a tiebreaker. The skater with the highest scores in technical merit would get the gold. Brian Boitano, with the highest score, won the first gold medal for the United States and Brian Orser received the silver. The bronze medal went to Viktor Petrenko of the Soviet Union.

The third Olympian, another figure skater, is Debi Thomas of Silicon Valley. Debi is a premed student at Stanford University and has been skating for fifteen years. She was the world figure skating champion in 1987. She skated against her rival, Katarina Witt of East Germany, and they both skated to the Music, "Carmen." She said of all of her hard work, "One moment of glory is worth everything."

CRC: CENSORSHIP?

How could a school board meeting possibly attract well over 500 people from the Danville area alone? Why would hundreds of students spend their Tuesday evening at a board meeting rather than studying, watching T.V., or talking on the telephone. The only plausible reason is because of the CRC. And just what, you may be asking yourself, is the CRC?

The CRC, or Curriculum Review Committee, is a group consisting of eight parents and two teachers from the San Ramon Valley. This particular group of people was chosen to make sure that the district curricula coincides with the communities standards and values.

After extensive research, they came up with some really controversial conclusions. One of these conclusions was "that such classroom activities as listing reasons why people do drugs and then refuting those reasons are worthless and could lead some students to experiment with drugs and alcohol." Besides, this type of activity does not work well with the CRC's "just say NO" slogan.

Some of the other conclusions that the CRC came to were that the self-esteem and decision-making activities in Freshman Health classes led to sexual activity among adolescents. The committee went on to say that these are values that should be taught at home and only at the appropriate time.

The students did not take this lying down, though. Instead, a group of them got together and drew up a petition to keep the curriculum intact. This petition read in part: "Merely telling students not to use drugs does not work. Students must be given proper information to make their own decisions because those are the only ones they will follow." The students got well over 2300 signatures to protest the CRC's recommendations to the school board.

So now it should be quite evident to see why there were over 500 people at the school board meeting on Tuesday, January 19, 1988.

But that probably leaves you wondering about how it all turned out. Well, as The Valley Times stated, "after a lengthy debate over 'refusal skills' vs. 'decision-making,' the trustees compromised and adopted the kindergarten-through-eighth grade curriculum intact while modifying several disputed decision-making objectives in the ninth-grade health unit."

COLA

This year, the district's 722 teachers are demanding an 8% salary increase while the district wants to limit the teacher's raises according to the cost of living adjustments (COLA) granted yearly by the state. This year's COLA is 2.54%.

The District if offering to keep the teacher's salaries at the top of the pay scales among equal districts in the area.

Brian Bourg, chief negotiator for the San Ramon Valley Education Association, said that the Pleasanton School District's teachers at seven years can earn as much as $5,000 more a year. The Pleasanton district is not, however, one of those used by the district for comparison.

This dispute led to 400 teachers plus many other supporters demonstrating public pressure by picketing the San Ramon Valley Education Center.

STOCKS & SHIPS

THE DOW JONES industrial stock average dropped 508 points, the largest in history, on Monday, October 19, 1987. Some called it a "crash," others called it a "meltdown" and others called it "Black Monday." Whatever it was, it stripped $500 billion from the market value of U.S. securities and kept the world on its financial toes all year long.

THE PERSIAN GULF is the seaway for about 15% of the world's crude oil. Even today, after seven years of warfare between Iran and Iraq, some 500 vessels ply its waters daily. But now the ships must run a gauntlet of missiles and mines that have sunk or damaged more than 400 ships to date. Although America imports a scant 5% of its oil from the Gulf states, the Reagan administration was eager to thwart Soviet ambitions in the region, rebuff the Ayatollah Khomeini and regain credibility after its arms sales to Iran were exposed. In March, Washington's offer to place the Stars and Stripes on eleven Kuwaiti ships and provide them with Navy escorts was accepted. After the USS Stark was accidentally savaged by Iraqi missiles, tensions — and incidents — mounted. In September, the U.S. Navy blew up an Iranian ship that was caught laying mines in the Gulf and several mines were confiscated.

A TIME FOR PEACE?

Ronald Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev met in Washington, D.C., for a ceremonial farewell to 2,000 nuclear missiles. The treaty was resolved by George Shultz of the United States and the Soviet Union's Eduard Shevardnadze during a previous meeting. This is their third summit meeting (Geneva in 1985 and Reykjavik in 1986) and Gorbachev's first visit to the U.S. They signed an INF (Intermediate Nuclear Forces) treaty to destroy all Soviet Union and United States missiles with ranges of 300-3,400 miles.

According to the treaty, each side will be permitted to observe a missile-assembly plant. Soviet observers will view a U.S. plant in Magna, Utah, while those of the United States will do the same at a plant near the Ural Mountains. Neither team will be allowed inside each other's factories, but each can station monitors to inspect cargo at the exits and perimeters. In addition, each country will be allowed to make 20 surprise visits to suspected weapons facilities during the first three years of the treaty, 15 during the next five years and ten annually in the remaining five years.

Both sides will monitor the disposal of warheads, launchers and support facilities after taking inventory of each other's weapons. At hundreds of locations in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, camouflage will be lifted to uncover weapon sites for American spy satellites to photograph. Similar arrangements will apply to the United States and Western Europe.

The summit encourages more negotiations on the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START) treaty that would reduce long-range nuclear weapons in the U.S. and the U.S.S.R.

Censorship

The age of underground newspapers has come and gone in American schools, but the January 4, 1988 ruling by the United States Supreme Court initiated enough pressure that it just may bring them back to life. In a 5-3 ruling, the Supreme Court affirmed administrators right to censor and suppress school publications, since papers are owned and controlled by the schools.

The decision arose from a suit filed by publications students at Hazelwood East High School in Missouri, who protested when their principal deleted two pages in a 1983 issue of their newspaper. The deleted pages included two articles concerning divorce and pregnancy; subjects which the principal found inappropriate. He also felt that the identities of the pregnant girls and that of a parent who was getting divorced were not fully disguised, and due to a printer's deadline there was no time for revision. Steven Shapiro of the American Civil Liberties Union disagreed, saying, "Here we are dealing with clearly serious and responsible student speech."

Under the ruling, all student newspapers financed and supervised by public schools are affected. However, the papers published at private schools and those done independently by students will remain uncensorable.

This Supreme Court decision was extremely controversial, as many believe that it violates the First Amendment to the Constitution. "I don't know how we can teach freedom of the press on one hand and turn around and say 'this doesn't apply to you' " said Barbara Sawyer, advisor for the Enquirer at Diablo Valley College. Many school newspaper editors and advisors feel that the ruling was unjust and will stunt learning.

The effects of the ruling, according to Time Magazine, may include a trend towards "feistier journalism" and underground newspapers. The Constitution still protects freedom of expression outside of the school environment, and students will undoubtedly turn to desktop publishing at home to pursue their journalist instincts and make themselves heard.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENTIAL candidate Gary Hart was forced to drop his bid for the presidency after it was reported that he was romantically involved with Donna Rice, a 29-year-old aspiring actress and model from Miami. He later re-entered the race after declaring that he has put his past behind him and that he is the best candidate. But will the American public forgive his promiscuity as easily as they forget what they had for breakfast?

TELEVISION EVANGELISTS Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker said farewell to the PTL ministry this year. Jim Bakker resigned after confessing to a sexual encounter with Jessica Hahn, a former church secretary. He then tried to cover it up through bribery. Tammy Faye bowed out of the broadcasts to undergo treatment for drug dependency. Amid subsequent revelations such as million-dollar salaries and outlandish purchases, the PTL was declared bankrupt. Jim and Tammy now face a Federal investigation for tax evasion and mail fraud.

HE GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE in San Francisco celebrated its 50th birthday. About 250,000 people jammed to the bridge for an anniversary walk across the span. Another 500,000 packed the bridge approaches but were nied access because the engineers feared the span could not support the weight.

THE SIX YEARS since Americans first heard of a mysterious immunity-robbing disease from which no one covers, AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) has killed nearly 25,000 Americans. Millions of dollars ve poured into medical research and President Reagan has proclaimed the plague "Public Health Enemy umber One."

PRESIDENT AND MRS. REAGAN greeted Pope Paul II when he arrived in the United States to begin his nine-city tour. This is Ronald Reagan's last year in the White House after which he will return to his ranch here in California.

AN EARTHQUAKE that measured 6.1 on the Richter scale hit Southern California. While it was not a catastrophic quake, the damage was extensive.

TIMELY EVENTS OF THE YEAR

MADONNA has had a busy year. Her new movie, "Who's That Girl?", flopped at the box office. (May it rest in peace with all of her other movies.) She also filed for divorce from her husband of three years, Sean Penn.

Up and Coming 2

CURRENTLY ON TOUR with their number one album "Joshua Tree", U2 is everybody's favorite "serious" band. When you want to dance, there's this season's latest pop band. But when you want to think, feel, believe, and understand, there's little else but U2 in terms of contemporary rock & roll bands.

Composed of lead singer Bono, guitarist Edge, bassist Adam Clayton and drummer Larry Muller, U2 has achieved a number one album in the country and is called by Rolling Stone magazine the best rock band in the world, all in less than ten years.

Having achieved success — financially and critically — beyond their wildest imagination, U2 is faced with the stark question: What's next? For almost any other rock band, the answer would be obvious: rest, new album, new concert tour, rest . . . But U2, from its beginning, has played by a different formula. They proclaim that rock is supposed to be something more than just another form of entertainment. Like those who inspired them — John Lennon and Bob Dylan, among others, they want to better the world with their music. — based on article from Up! magazine

WILLIAM CASEY, 74, director of the CIA since 1981, posthumously became a key figure in the Iran-Contra scandal.

HENRY FORD, 70, revived the family business with cars like the Thunderbird and Mustang.

JACKIE GLEASON, 71, got laughs and riches as a blustering bus driver on the television series "The Honeymooners."

LORNE GREENE, 72, played the firm, yet gentle father to three sons on television's "Bonanza."

RITA HAYWORTH, 68, was swept off her feet by Fred Astaire in several films.

JOHN HUSTON, 81, acted in 21 films and directed 41, including "The Maltese Falcon" and "African Queen."

DANNY KAYE, 74, singer, dancer, comedian and child at heart was best known as Walter Mitty.

LIBERACE, 67, glittering showman, glitzed up concerts with furs, feathers and rhinestones with that ever-shining candelabra.

CLARA PELLER, 86, increased Wendy's revenues 32% by asking: "Where's the beef?"

ANDY WARHOL, age unknown, immortalized the Campbell's soup can and was a leading exponent in pop art.

HAROLD WASHINGTON, 65, became Chicago's first black mayor.

A Small One's Plea

After six-year-old Lisa Steinberg's alleged beating death in New York, in late 1987, radio stations everywhere began playing Dear Mr. Jesus, a three-year-old song recorded by Sharon Batts. Millions of hearts were touched, especially during the Christmas season. Thousands of radio listeners phoned stations across the nation, requesting Sharon's plea to protect children.

In just a few months, the song has moved millions of Americans. One mother in Los Angeles called in, crying, and asked for help. She had been abusing her child and was referred to an abuse clinic. Many other similar calls ensued. Most who heard Sharon's innocent voice were enveloped by a feeling of injustice and many tears fell.

The overall impact of the song in preventing child abuse will never be known, but Sharon's frightened voice will probably always remain in the hearts of many.

SOAPS: A TIME TO RELAX

Even before television, there were soaps. Gathered around the radio, women did the cooking and cleaning while tearfully listening to their favorite sagas. But now soap-watching has become a favorite sport for men as well as women. Senior JASON GOLDBLATT just started watching "Days of Our Lives" about a year ago and is a semi-devoted fan. He says, "I can pick up on a month's worth of shows by watching it once during that time."

For a while the nighttime soaps, including "Dynasty", "Dallas", and "Knots Landing", were extremely popular. But now it seems like the daytime soaps are in the spotlight with many high school students. Out of the thirteen soaps on television, "Days of our Lives" tops the list with teens.

Although Senior CARLENE TUDOR is an avid watcher of "Days", she still has her problems with it. "I'm so sick of Patch and Kayla, I wish they would both die."

There are different reasons why people watch soaps; adventure, escape from reality, or as Senior NANCY KAMERER stated, referring to "Days", "Justin Kiriakis keeps me watching because he's a hot babe and because he's got the cutest dimples."

Soap operas now manage to keep most of their viewers watching because of a number of different plot twists and exciting adventures. Soaps may not be for everyone, but for many they provide an entertaining escape from everyday life.

"I watch "Days" but I've tried to stop because its very addicting and can easily change your mood," said Junior MINDY ROBERTS.

"Days" is not the only popular soap, though. According to Senior SHAWN ZOVOD, it's the worst show around. "I made sure I would only have to go to school for five periods so I could come home and still see 40 minutes of "All My Children." I don't see why all my friends watch "Days", it's so stupid." Senior WENDY WATSON also thinks "Days" is not so great. "I watch "Santa Barbara" because it's just more realistic than the others."

On the subject of realism, LORI HERZOG had this to say, "I like "Days", but to tell you the honest truth, the special effects are really lacking. I mean NOBODY makes that much noise when they kiss."

As the students in this story have proven, soaps are popular. So, if you have felt silly in the past for watching a soap opera, you no longer have to because you are obviously not alone. So the next time a tear comes to your eye because of those sappy sagas, don't feel silly because at least half of the school is watching the same show.

IT'S ABOUT TIME

Seniors will never exchange these parts of their lives: memories of football games, dances, parties, Junior Prom, trips to Burger King, drivers tests, Senior Ball, friends, relationships, and donut runs. As a freshman those four years looked like an endless road, but now, for some, it seems the time passed too fast.

Looking back reminds the class of '88 of their freshman year. their thoughts of the first encounter with Monte Vista brings back memories of selecting classes, getting lockers, finding Feast and being so naive.

As the class moved up the ladder they entered the sophomore year. This meant knowing exactly where most of the classrooms were, their locker combinations now memorized and a new sense of pride in high school, as the class of '88 were not freshmen anymore. For some this year brought new independence with their driver's license now in hand. For the rest, it meant sitting and waiting for their 16th birthday to arrive.

Hours of homework occupied the Junior year while knowing time was the only thing holding them back from becoming seniors. With college getting near, juniors began to prepare for the SAT, which paid off when they took the three hour test. Highlighting the junior year was the Junior Prom bringing back memories of tuxedos, expensive gowns and the infamous limousines.

Reaching the top opened new challenges and obstacles for the class of '88. Filling out college applications and making sure all requirements were met for graduation caused some stress. As soon as these short delays were overcome, the senior class was open for good times. Planning for Senior Ball and preparing for graduation and vacations that were to follow, were all part of this exciting year.

Looking back on high school will bring back fond memories of times such as the North coast Section Championship, and the Senior Overnighter shared with good friends. Because, with a class this outstanding there will be no reason to look back with cynicism and bitterness and sing this song: "When I look back at all the crap I learned in high school, it's a wonder I can think at all." — Paul Simon.

SENIORS TAKE IT TO COURT

On November 21st many seniors participated in a mock trial at City hall in San Francisco as part of a Civics extra credit project arranged by Kennedy Kiley.

At 8 a.m. Saturday morning the seniors arrived at M.V. to await Mr. Kiley's roll call. After this lengthy task, due to the usual overly verbal seniors, they were finally on their way.

The mock trial was set up by law students and presided over by real judges who informed us we were to hear the case of Officer Wentworth who was accused of accepting a bribe in exchange for false testimony.

The first half of the trial seemed to go smoothly as the jurors were asked questions by the two lawyers and then sworn in. The courtroom procedure was a dramatization of how real trials work and real people acted as witnesses in the case.

At 11:45 everyone was let out for lunch and strictly told not to discuss the case with anyone. The seniors were left to wander the street of Van Ness in search of lunch. However this was probably the highlight of the day. Many used the 90 minutes to grab a quick bite at McDonalds and check out Tower Records, while others had a relaxing meal at Max's Opera Cafe.

Back in session, the trials continued. Some dragged on slower than others, probably due to the inexperience of the lawyers. Many students became a bit restless but patiently listened.

Finally the big moment came when to deliberate and give a verdict. It seems that most of the juries found Officer Wentworth guilty of the crime, but there were those who saw too much doubt and handed down a verdict of not guilty.

1) Jennifer Herzog and Pam Sowar discuss Officer Wentworth's guilt during a trial break.

2) Tom Newman and Mark Belshaw fill out the jury's decision to hand to the judge.

3) Pat Lewis, Diane Neilsen, Gavin Havrilenko, Mike Mann and Sam Evans discuss their verdict while Brian Church throws up his hands with a feeling of innocence.

UNDER PRESSURE

Seniors experienced a very difficult time in their lives during the fall semester. This difficulty was a result of the major decisions that needed to be made which would determine the outcome of their lives. Choosing a major, deciding when to take the SAT/ACT, and contemplating future plans filled the minds of many. However, before even thinking about college, many seniors were worried about graduating. The answers to the questions, "Do I have the right courses?", or, "Is my GPA high enough?" haunted seniors until graduation day. With all these pressures, how ere senior supposed to enjoy themselves? In fact, all these pressures only created hundreds of stress monsters.

The physical description of a typical senior during the fall semester would be as follows: Blood shot eyes due to the numerous sleepless nights spent worrying about college application deadlines; puffy eyes from tears over test scores; fingernails chewed to the cuticle, due to unanswerable questions found on the SAT; and even a few grey hairs, just above the ear.

The future holds so much in store, and Monte Vista seniors are ready to take on the challenge. Stress and hard work through the four years of high school have only made them stronger in their quest for their dreams.

SENIOR TIMES

It wasn't until my alarm went off at 6:30 a.m. on Tues., Sept. 8 that the fact that I was a Senior hit me. You know, being at the top of the totem pole, the big cheese, and numero uno. It then dawned on me that my graduating year 1988, was right around the corner.

The day began when my big toe hit the carpet as I got out of my warm bed. I walked to the bathroom, looked into the mirror, and pouted because it had been so long since I had seen the day break. My mind then wandered back to my first day of high school. I remembered spending two weeks deciding what to wear, three hours that morning trying to obtain the "natural wear look," and giving myself a 15-minute pep talk on how to act mature when approached by someone older than I.

It's funny, because now, 3 years later, I became one of the older people. I no longer had to wait in line for food, and there was always a space for me at the senior benches during lunch, even though Brass Bear seemed to be my official lunchtime hangout. It was at that time that who's who didn't matter anymore, the big concern was who am I going to be.

That's another thing that separated this year from all the rest, the class of '88 finally seemed united. We learned that all people can do a lot of great things, but it's what's inside them that counts. This is a lesson that the freshman, sophomores, and juniors should anticipate learning, because it makes communicating with a lot of diverse people easier.

I find now, looking back, that there's only one problem with being a Senior; once you begin the year, you're already on your way to the end. Now that these four years are over, being a kid is only part of the past. Just as we look back on weeble wobbles, swing sets, big wheels, Barbies, and Hot Wheels, we will also remember games, rallies, dances, and dull weekend nights, with a smile on our faces and tears in our eyes. The smile symbolizing the fun we had with our friends, and the tears because now it's gone and there's no going back.

I'm not ready to grow up yet, even though I should be, and I know that many other people feel the same way. No matter how much I want out of Danville and to be out on my own, I don't want to lose the "kid" in me. Once I'm on my own, I'll be solely responsible for my mistakes and I'll never again find the kind of friends that I've had these past few years,because, they are moving on with their lives also.

So, senior year wasn't all fun and games. It was a year of change and chance and there will never be another year like it. I will miss the year itself, and everything and everyone that was part of it.

LUNCHTIME

THE PROS AND CONS

OF LEAVING M.V.'S CLOSED CAMPUS

By our Junior year, most of us have our drivers licenses. At this time we may begin to believe that the food in town is so much better than the 'stuff' that they sell at Feast. Leaving campus at lunch is a privilege for those lucky few who have a sticker on the back of their student body card. If you don't have one there are still many ways to leave this closed campus at lunch. If one of the administrators is out checking, you can jump the curb or limbo your FIAT or CRX under the gates. But still the easiest way to leave is to park out on the street, stupid.

Once you are on your way you must choose the right place to eat. Brass Bear Deli in Alamo is always a popular place. There you can eat your lunch out in the sun and relax. But this momentary relaxation quickly disappears as you realize that your sixth period class began 3 minutes ago. You rush back to school and end up parking in a red zone or in the corral because everyone got back before you. As you run back to your class you promise that you will never be late again, but deep down you know that tomorrow's lunch time destination is Cybelles in Danville.

FUTURE TIMES

It is hard to imagine life twenty years into the future. How will you be living? How do you imagine your time beyond high school, into a marriage perhaps. Do you see yourself having 2.3 children, a house in the suburbs, a two-car garage, a golden retriever, four television sets, and an annual trip to Europe? Is that what is really in store for the average Monte Vista student? Or is, as Aaron Havercroft suggests, "being a beach bum," more our style? No one can say for sure, but most of us will attempt to go above and beyond the national average in material possessions. We are big consumers here.

Most of us now have high ambitions . . . college, a career, eventually marriage. Our standards are starting out high because we are part of the affluent communities of Alamo, Danville, or Walnut Creek. This factor adds all the more pressure to our desire to succeed. Few of us want to merely equal the lifestyles that our families have established, we wish to surpass that which has already been accomplished by our parents. Nason Hoyt plans to outdo his parents by "retiring early with a couple mil in the bank."

Yet, in just a few years, we will no longer be sheltered by our parents. The future holds enormous possibilities for us, but they all include change. We will try to live up to the high standards that we have set for ourselves. We will have to start at the bottom and work our way back up to the status that we have now, before we can even begin to surpass it. By and by, we may come to realize that what we most deeply desire is not what we actually have been striving to achieve. Our economic success will not guarantee our happiness, for the contentment is not the result of material wealth, but of something harder to obtain. The attributes of an affluent community alone cannot insure a fulfilling life. Time will tell the story, so we'll just have to wait for the future to unveil the secrets that it holds.

TIME OFF

"Weekend." The word just tingles with excitement. No other word can bring a class full of students and a frazzled teacher to such exhilarating heights of expectation.

What is it that goes on from Friday to Sunday night that causes such chaos to rule classrooms every Friday? Aaron Havercroft says that his favorite weekend activity is, "to go out with my girlfriend . . . because she makes me." But then he laughs and admits that they have a good time together no matter where they go.

For those of us unfortunate (or is it fortunate) enough not to have a special someone to spend the weekends with, parties are always a good way to pass the time. According to Russ Price, "Parties are good for you. They give everyone a chance to meet people and to have a great time as well."

Of course, if you don't have someone special and there are no ragers that weekend, then you can always look to your buds for a good time. As Nason Hoyt says, "I like to get together with people because it's fun, its enjoyable, and you learn something every time."

No matter what you like to do on the weekend, it ought to be fun and relaxing. After all, the weekend is a time to really relax, slow down, and take some time out to just sit back and smell the roses.

WHEN IT'S TIME TO MOVE ON

Starting in April, many Juniors begin to realize that soon, very soon, they will be mighty Seniors. Their Senior year will be the most fun of the four, but along with this last year of high school will come more work than they realize. Right around November the dreaded college applications flood Seniors desks, each as big as a term paper. They will type and revise and revise their essays until they are nothing less than perfect. It is at this time that they will realize that in nine short months, all of their friends and everything they are familiar with will disappear. What will happen in September 1989?

This first comes to question when the senior slide show is shown. All of the Juniors will move and sit in the Senior bleachers. But this question is most amplified when all of their Senior friends dress up in black robes and leave.

Becoming a Senior will be a fun and exciting thing but it will also be sad. Your Junior year is a good time to have fun with your friends without the feeling in the back of your mind that your high school time is up.

A DATING NIGHTMARE

WELCOME TO THE JUNIOR PROM

Frank and Ed, two happening Monte Vista Juniors, pulled in to pick up their dates. They walked to the door and rang the bell.

"Hi, we're here to pick up Gladas and Velda."

Velda with her neon blue pumps that matched her shiny blue braces was the first to descend the stairs. There was a click and a blinding flash. Next came Gladas, her flaxen hair went perfect with her fluorescent orange dress. The guys felt a little out of place in their Batman and Robin pajamas but they didn't give it another thought.

"Great, well you kids have a good time . . . Oh! you're growing up so fast."

They quickly departed for their dinner at Emil Villas.

After dinner they rushed to be first at the dance. They were cutting up the floor with John and Becky to the requested sounds of the Bee Gee's and Bob Dylan. They thought the night would never end but ten o'clock came all too soon.

"Wow, we better get going or your pop is going to be real sore."

The foursome dashed to their yellow Gremlin parked outside. They rushed home and dropped the girls off. The girls thanked them and they shook hands.

BEACH TIME

Spring time is a time when students around the world forget their responsibilities and enjoy the warm weather. Students seek to escape to the inviting scene of the beach at Santa Cruz.

The 75 mile trip can be made in one hour if you ignore the sirens. Once there, it is important to choose the right beach. 4th street, 7th street and the Capitola pier are the most popular. At the beach you must make sure that you have the necessary items: Vuarnets, Tropical Blend tanning oil, a football, and of course a cooler full of Hawaiian Punch and squished grapes. While upgrading your tan on the beach, words like homework and quiz are lost in the sound of your favorite music blasting across the sands.

Yet, sooner or later the day ends and you must fight the traffic back to reality. The evidence of your escapade can be detected the next day at school by your sunburnt nose and the sand in your sneakers.

TIMELESS MEMORIES

Friendship is something that we all need. Although many of us take it for granted, we could not get along without our friends. We tell our problems to them, share our happiness and love, argue with them, but most of all we have fun. Your friends are the ones that congratulate you on your success and experience the good times as you do. When things go wrong, a good friend will be there to comfort you, telling you that they are always there for you and, "next time things will go better."

Yet in just a few short years the close bonds developed during high school will be broken. After graduation, your relationship will never be the same. College, or whatever you choose to do with your life after high school will change you. Away at school, you will meet new people and have new experiences that will have influences on your life. You will not notice the gradual changes, but when you get together with old friends over vacations, the differences will be evident. No matter how hard we try to stay together things will never be quite the same.

You may want to believe that the friends you have now will always be with you, but it is simply not true. As time passes, your good high school friends will fade into memories of the past as you move on to new friends. This is a sad subject on which to ponder, but it unfortunately is the truth we all must face eventually.

We must treasure the friends we have now and hold on for as long as possible, because they may not be there for as long as you think.

PHYSICS: $x = \frac{1}{2}gt^2$

A TIME FOR STUDY

Why on earth would anyone ever want to take physics? With all the required high school science credits completed, what motivates anyone to enroll in a physics class? This year, there are 110 people taking physics at Monte Vista. And for 34 of these students, it is not merely a physics class, but an HONORS physics class, full of brilliant individuals who do not permit you to experience the luxury of a class curve, because one of them scores the highest possible on every test.

What, in fact, do you learn in Physics? Well, for example, that objects like to keep on doing what they are already doing. And, force is equal to mass times acceleration. Mr. Leon Borowski, that wonderful teacher, loves to assign exciting labs in which you get to predict the projectory of marbles. "What is a projectory anyway?" questioned Michelle Neill. She has a curious mind. He also enjoys outdoor experiments, where he climbs on top of the roof, drops a rubber ball, and has his students time the fall in order to calculate neat things like acceleration. Mr. Borowski wants his students to leave his class with a better understanding of how to apply math, along with the ability to be able to "picture a situation and then come up with a solution to the problem."

During the course of the year, physics students find themselves subjected to numerous lectures and the preparation of a ten minute oral presentation. This year, Junior Mike Levitt captured our attention with a filmstrip on elementary particles, while Dolly Shen nervously reported on quasars. Another Junior, Michelle Baskes commented on her speech, "I really picked the topic because I liked the name, but quarks turned out to be rather interesting." Quarks? Really!

If you can find the coefficient of friction of a three kilogram wooden block sliding at a constant speed down an incline plane that makes an angle of 32 degrees with the ground, you don't need to be enrolled in physics otherwise you should be.

Opposite: 1) Kelly Vittetoe attacks Chris Musseman with a balloon and a seltzer.
2) Commander Paul Slous wears his comfortable new rug, greeting friends outside math.
3) Step Dressler is proud to be known as a "computer kid", among the many in M.V.'s large computer room.

LUNCH IS JUST WAY TOO SHORT

Do you ever find yourself stuffing food in your face while racing to class to beat the tardy bell? On a regular day, a class period consists of fifty long minutes. The lunch period however consists of only thirty-five minutes. Lunch is too short to eat, to relax, to unwind, and to do a little socializing as well.

The general feeling expressed by students is that lunch is "way too short," as stated by Junior Jill Rognerud. Jill eats both on and off campus and finds that there is just not enough time to eat. "You have to chow down your food in the car while driving back to school and it's incredibly messy."

When teacher, Richard Grotegut, was questioned about the situation, he felt lunch was not only too short but noted that, "more students come tardy" to his sixth period class than his other classes. Assistant Principal John Morrison, said "The reason it's short is that you don't need that much time to eat." He then went on to say that off campus passes are not for going to the local food joints, but for going home for lunch.

With that reasoning, it is plausible to say that anyone living within two miles of Monte Vista might have enough time to get home and back. But for those kids who don't, thirty-five minutes may be enough time to eat lunch, yet still not enough time to enjoy it.

1) Ben Borchers and Ryan Booth are delighted to eat such good food.
2) Voguesophomores, Anmarie Chandler and Kim Evans display their choice in soft drinks.
3) Julie Radder, Hilary Olson, and Julie Lukasko are some of the sophomores who have taken over the Hill for their own dining purposes.

ROARING 90's

According to the Merriam Webster Dictionary, spirit is "a life-giving force". Therefore school spirit would be a force that gives a whole school life and class spirit would be a force that gives life to a particular class.

Naturally, the largest class is going to have the most life and spirit in it. This class is without a doubt the Sophomores.

With well over 400 students included in the Sophomore class, it comes as no surprise to learn that a good percentage of Monte Vista's athletes and other involved people are Sophomores.

According to Thor Cornelius, the sophomores are more spirited, "because we're no longer Freshmen, but we're also not idiots like the Juniors and Seniors yet."

Whether that Sophomore spirit happens because their class is more involved or because they are better than Freshmen doesn't really matter. All that matters is that they have it and they are bound and determined to show it off.

1) Matt Swenson, Chris Lombardi, Rob Kone and Mike Austin paint their faces and as Mike says, "It's cuz we're awesome!"

CROSS COUNTRY

The Fun Run

After about two weeks into the season, Cross Country practice can get a bit tedious. So, when a fellow runner suggested an adventurous run over to the Sycamore pool, followed by a refreshing swim, we thought that we could ignore the three long miles if we only concentrated on those tantalizing waters at the end of the trek. On the day of the run, everyone met by the edge of the duck pond. We threw our swim suits, towels, goggles, flippers, and other paraphernalia into the back of Coach Randy Knudson's truck. After about thirty seconds of stretching, the girls were ready to begin the journey. We argued briefly about the shortest possible route and then headed off through the park.

Heading down towards Vista Grande school, while on Ackerman, we saw the boys' team coming from the other route. Of course, their way was probably shorter, we all complained. I was running with Cathy Dong, who kept muttering about the blisters on her feet from her K-Swiss sneakers. Beyond Vista Grande, John Spade kept passing us every couple of minutes, riding his super-cool ten speed, laughing and offering us water.

Tassajara Road was the killer. Anyone who has only driven up it can not really understand its evil qualities. Completely in the sun and consisting of a steady uphill incline, the road lacks compassion. Cathy kept yelling for me to wait up, but we were falling behind the guy in front of us. Eventually, we rounded the corner at the top of the hill and were blessed with a shady downhill finish.

Dripping and exhausted, we arrived at the pool gates where some of the other runners had already congregated. There were lots of new faces since it was still early in the season. We were ready for our swim, but the lifeguard refused to let our group inside the gates. He insisted on counting the number of pool members and non-members to check and see if we had the appropriate ratio. Of course, we had too many non-members and not enough members. Shana Seifert, the senior who had promised to get all of us in, was devastated. A compromise was reached, and we were able to enter the pool area as some of the faster team members exited.

What an adventure, we all thought later, after our swim, as the six remaining girls and our coach, Jan Oehm, piled into her VW rabbit for the drive back to Monte Vista.

TIME TO BE FIT

Exercise is not mandatory. There is no rule that says that you must jog a mile or do thirty sit ups a day, yet many people still think of exercise as a necessity. Others disagree and argue that they don't have time or else they think of some other excuse not to exercise. Most people, though, do agree that exercise does have some good points.

Take Adam Voos as an example. He likes to do many physical activities, but his favorite is running through Roundhill. It is his favorite because, "there's no car exhaust to interfere with my breathing." Yet Erin Thiry takes on a whole different attitude about exercise. He has this to say about it: "I don't like it 'cause it's boring and makes me tired . . . unless i'ts in bed. Besides, it interferes with my smoking time." To this, Mike Silverman would argue that, "exercise is intellectually stimulating," rather than boring. Then there are people like John Blacker who says, "It depends on what you like to do. Running and s— is boring as hell, but I like to play sports." Of course, not everyone would agree with John either. Jeff Bettcher is one, such person. He says, "I like to run, but lifting weights is the most fun. I like to lift in the weight room during school."

Not only is exercise good for your health but it is also good for your attitude. It makes you look up, think up and feel up. And everyone knows that during those depressing school months it really helps to find something that makes you feel up. So go out and run for a while or do some sit ups or you can even try walking around a shopping mall. But no matter what you do, you will feel much better because of it.

MY FONDEST MEMORY

When you leave high school, the only thing that you are able to take with you are your memories.

Kristyn Howard seems to think that the best part about being a Sophomore was, "the De La Salle Monte Vista Game, because everyone showed so much school spirit." She went on to say that everyone has a lot of fun and that we are all united in a common cause which was really nice.

No matter what your fondest memory of Sophomore year was, make sure that you remember it well enough so that twenty years from now, when you start to reminisce about your high school years, you will be able to remember it as clearly as if it were yesterday.

THOSE HOURS AFTER DARK

As the sun falls behind the western foothills, daytime ends but night is just beginning. Sunset marks the recurrence of nightfall and awakens that mysterious and exciting feeling inside Monte Vista students, making them want to go out and tear up the town. Some special quality in those hours after dark brings out the spirit in Freshmen and Seniors alike.

Maybe our love for night time stems from childhood suppression. When we were little, mommy and daddy tucked us into bed once it started to get late. Bedtime remained the dreaded ordeal throughout childhood, as we all tried to stall for as long as possible. After dark, we were never permitted to go outside and play, for it was always too late and too dangerous.

Now, we are beyond that childhood stage, but the mystical and exciting aura still lingers around night time. Perhaps that is why late night movies attract more Monte Vista Sophomores than the bargain matinees.

Each sunset in itself remains unique and the night that follows can be seen through many eyes.

LIVE AND UNCENSORED

Sophomore year can be seen from several different perspectives. It is the year of transition from the status of immature dinky to that of upperclassmen. Or it can also be seen as merely the second year of life at Monte Vista, just another high school in the United States. Or, Sophomore year can be depicted as the year to let loose, be yourself, have fun, not worrying too much about how silly you may look, and to really live it up.

After a year of trying to improve upon their dinky images, many Sophomores are really ready to be themselves and relax. If you want to goof around a bit, nothing is stopping you. High school is a time for growing up, but no one said that you had to act mature all the time. Some of the silliest of times can be the best of times and the most fun. Sophomores do not want to waste time worrying about how they look. They want to enjoy themselves, try new things, and experience life.

We are only young once and Sophomores know it is fleeting. They feel it, and try to live like youth will go away tomorrow. They throw away their inhibitions and live life as they want. For if there is ever a time to break the rules, Sophomore year is it.

SOPHOMORES MAKE TIME FOR FRIENDS

With each progressing year students become closer with their friends and learn to trust them more. In no year is this more evident than in the sophomore year.

As freshmen it can take the entire year just to realize who your real friends are. As a sophomore you have the time to become closer with friends made as a freshmen. Sophomores become more spirited and work together better. Whether it's floats, rallies, classwork or just being together, sophomores are close-knit.

What's in a Locker?

A parade of ravenous ants amassed about a month-old sandwich, which hid in the back of a Monte Vista locker, decomposing and emitting the scent of overripened bologna. One lucky soul, Cathy Dong, is so privileged as to have a king sized mud puddle form directly beneath her locker, where inevitably her books always fall.

Who hasn't experienced his or her share of amusing incidents that relate in some way or another to a trusted, old locker. However, there is more behind the lockers at Monte Vista that any of the students seem to realize. At the end of the 1986-87 school year a new system of locker distribution went into effect. During the last week of school in June, students who wished to keep their present locker registered in the office. The other students waited until Registration and obtained a different locker on a first-come, first-served basis. Ms. Barbara Tabler, the attendance secretary, recalls the solution to the problem of three foot tall freshmen receiving top lockers, "This year, we automatically assigned all incoming 9th graders to the bottom lockers."

For the freshmen, the policy may appear unkind, but they are free to sign up at the start of their sophomore year. In this manner, a cycle can be established, where people have a choice about the location and height of their locker, although a few kinks still remain in the system, Ms. Tabler reported that, with the new method, locker assignments ran the smoothest in her seven years at Monte Vista.

People who have had difficulties in the past may find that things are running a bit smoother. Last year, Karah Schweizer complained about having to share a locker: "they (the school) gave my locker away to freshman." Another locker-sharer, Christine Tomacci, jokingly stated, "I share my locker."

Freshmen Orientation

Dinkies Experience First Time Jitters

It all starts out on a seemingly normal summer morning. You wake up, eat a bowl of Rice Krispies and pad around the house in your fluffy animal slippers. Then, you remember! This is the first day of the rest of your life, your introduction to high school, Freshman Orientation. Your stomach starts to jump around, nagging worries float through your head and you get an awful feeling of the chills. Before total panic begins to set in, a reassuring sound calms you down, the phone is ringing. Your best friend Krissy is on the other end.

"Karen," she squeals, "I have absolutely nothing to wear. My blue stretch pants make me look too fat and my jeans just don't look right."

For the next thirty minutes, you and your friend cover every possible dilemma which could mar this important day. What if we don't have any classes together? What if I get a top locker? Oh no, I can't find my emergency card, my picture money, my signed discipline code thing-a-ma-bob! You finally hang up after agreeing to meet in front of school at exactly the same instant, so neither of you will look like a rejected loner.

The actual orientation turns out not to be such a big deal, the unwary Freshman faces hugh lines and boring waits. However, she manages to entertain herself with idle chatter. "Did you see Bobby? He's so much cuter than last year." And, "I can't believe what a snob Julie has turned into in just three months."

Once they battle their way through the lines, the Frosh are treated to a couple of enlightening speeches by Mr. Morrison and a Danvile police officer. The day ended with the distribution of the long-awaited schedules and a senior-guided tour of the campus, the highlight of the entire event. Finally, it was over. Still looming ahead remained the real challenge, the actual first day of high school, complete with teachers and upperclassmen, would the Freshman nightmare ever end?

1.) Nicole Harrison, Maile Hart, and Katie Hedmon show Freshmen enthusiasm.
2.) During freshman orientation, Charles Allen, Brad Bradon, and Craig Husfeld try to pay attention.
3.) Tracy Chan adjusting to the Monte Vista climate.

FROSH/SENIOR SIBLINGS

Despite the potential embarrassments it is the relationship between big seniors and little freshmen siblings at Monte Vista that matters most to them.

"It's not as bad as I thought it would be," said senior Jenny Craig about her sister Kim Craig. "I thought it would be a drag and she would be in the way, but not I like it. It's actually kind of cool having someone else with your last name." Jenny delights in having her sister called, "Little Craig."

As for Kim Craig, she sometimes feels overshadowed by her sister's reputation. "Teachers pick on me. I'm shy and they expect me to be like her (Jenny) and talk to everyone." But she said she is getting used to being "Little Craig."

Greg Crosley and Scott Crosley, also known as, "Little Croz," are another senior freshman duo. Greg seems to enjoy giving brotherly advice to Scott, but he also takes pleasure in teasing him. "I like to tease him about girls a lot. They're always calling him and sometimes I get a little jealous." "Fortunately, I don't take advice about girls from Greg."

Valerie Caplan is another senior who takes pleasure in harassing him her freshman sister Melissa Caplan. "I like to walk up to her and embarrass her in the hall," admitted Valerie with a smile.

However, Melissa Caplan said that Valerie really did not embarrass her, but she sometimes annoyed her. "She becomes an advice person. She fixes my belt, my hair, my clothes. She said, 'Your hair looks like a rat's nest,' " the other day. But overall, Melissa said, "It's fun" going to the same school.

Senior Gia Beem also sometimes enjoys having her little brother, Jason Beem at the same school because, "It can really be an advantage when I'm hungry and I need some money." "We used to fight all the time, but not we are a lot nicer to each other."

Jason Beem was as optimistic as his sister. He said there were some advantages and disadvantages. "I know a lot of people," thought Gia, "And that could be good or bad depending on who it is." "And she always borrows my clothes."

As for senior Chris Swartz and freshman Matt Swartz, their relationship is, "basically normal." Chris does not mind being seen with Matt and Matt relishes in the benefit of having an older brother to show him the ropes.

Generally, Monte Vista Senior-Freshman pairs get along, despite the fights and teasing. In the end, blood is thicker than water.

The First Day of School: A Day to Remember

The first day of school fills everyone with apprehension, regardless of the year they are entering or how cool they consider themselves. However, for Freshmen, the intensity of the ordeal increases drastically. Pressures come from every angle.

What probably by now is a routine caused such anguish in the beginning. Not knowing where to go, being subjected to ominous lectures around every corner, and facing tons of new faces, how could a Freshmen be expected to act calmly and with maturity? At some time in the not so distant past, all of us were subjected to the initial culture shock of entering high school. At brunch and at lunch, we wandered around the halls, hopelessly confused. Surrounded by hundreds of unfamiliar faces, we could never locate our little friends, whose bodies were masked by the giants that roamed the school. While praying that the upperclassmen wouldn't harass us, at the same time we desperately wanted to be noticed and accepted.

On that day, my heart went out to the two Freshmen girls who I overheard taking to an administrator, Becky Smith, I guessed. Mrs. Smith wanted to know why the girls wereheading towards the parking lot at lunch. They excitedly told her that they were going to the picnic, some Seniors had invited them. When Mrs. Smith told them that there was no picnic, their faces clouded with disappointment.

For the less gullible members of the Freshman class, the day may not have contained such heart-breaking incidents. Yet, the strong emotions that were prevalent on that first day are not easily forgotten, they slowly fade into bittersweet memories that remain forever inside of us.

The Freshman Objective:

Not to Look Like A Dinky

Although everyone does not go about it in the same manner, for the most part the Freshman objective is always the same: It is important that a Freshman does not look like a Freshman. Some people go to great lengths to disguise their identity as a "dinky," while others opt for a more subtle approach. there have been those who stubbornly refuse to admit to the fact that they must start on the lowest rung of the ladder in order to get to the top. In those cases, the students actually deny the fact that they are a member of the Freshman class. To deny such an easily verifiable bit of data is in itself an invitation to be eternally persecuted by your "superiors," the upperclassmen.

However, most Freshmen prefer to merely assume a disguise by carefully presenting themselves in a manner that makes them indistinguishable from the Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors at Monte Vista. One obvious give-away to being a Freshman is having a parent drop you off in the circle. This type of embarrassment can be avoided in a number of different ways. There are other options open as methods of transportation, i.e. big brother, neighbor, moped, or the bus. Freshman Matt Terry get to school with the help of mon, dad, or his own two feet. If a parent's lift to school is absolutely necessary, you can at least have them drop you off by the gym, around the corner, or a minimum of 30 minutes early.

As Kelly Green realizes, "When people know you're a Freshman, they joke around and tease, but its really just all in fun."

Still, sometimes these lowest of underclassmen just don't want to appear like a stereotyped immature Freshman. These are the ones who are supposed to run around the halls screaming, throwing airplanes in class, and starting food fights. The Freshman objective is to ban these immature acts, and it demands calm conversations and more respectable behavior.

"there's nothing wrong with being a Freshman," an anonymous ninth grader stated. It can seriously be said that this year the Freshmen have done an awfully good job of disguising themselves, since one can't begin to tell a Freshman from a Sophomore, or at times even from an unknown Junior or Senior. Who really knows if the girl being dropped off by her dad is a Freshman, or maybe she is just a short Senior whose car broke down?

1) Jennifer Perazzo does some last minute studying before her quiz the next period.
2) Mark Bronson works to finish his English assignment.
3) Matt Kartozian stares raptly.

BOB GIANNINI

Our New Principal

It was the year 1943, far far away in a city called Rome, Italy. And on that fateful day, a child was born who, unbeknownst to him or anyone else at that time, was to have a great impact upon Monte Vista (which was a school yet to be). This child was our beloved new principal Mr. Giannini.

He moved to America at a very young age and settled in for a long hard struggle.

His struggle began as a kindergarten student who spoke only Italian. Every day, for an hour before school, little Bobby Giannini would study the English language with his dedicated kindergarten teacher who cheered him on. It was with her help that Mr. Giannini became fluent in the language. Also because of her influence — one lone teacher — he decided that he wanted, "to help others as he had been helped." He wanted to become an educator.

With hard work and dedication, Mr. Giannini soon became a teacher. He started his career at Balboa High School. After teaching there for one year, he transferred out. Yet it was 11 years and three different schools later, before Mr. Giannini finally arrived at Monte Vista. After five years as the Monte Vista Assistant Principal, he ventured to Charlotte Wood for a three year stint as their Principal. This year he, "returned to Monte Vista as Principal, right where I belong."

He has taken a tough stance on discipline for, "if you screw up — you're gone." This policy is effective only because, as Mr. Giannini says, this generation of Monte Vista students is able to handle the responsibility and make the most of their time at Monte Vista. Mr. Giannini goes on to say, "Kids go to school so that they can go on with their lives. If they don't want to be here, if they don't want to work, they go over to Venture."

Although this attitude seems arrogant to some, Mr. Giannini really just wants whatever is best for everyone at Monte Vista. "I want to establish a safe, clean campus where as many kids as possible can get involved in something they enjoy."

1.) Bob Giannini caught while attempting to eat his muffin.
2.) What a hectic life a principal leads.
3.) "Smile! It makes people wonder what you've been up to."
4.) Bob Giannini lectures a peculiar class of the MV faculty.

Second Time Around

My "first" year as Principal at Monte Vista High School was all that I expected it to be and more. From championship athletics to nomination for the State Distinguished School Award, Monte Vista has proven itself to be one of the best schools in the state!

Being a principal has given me a new meaning of "getting involved". Those of you who know me understand that I believe a happy, successful student is an involved and pro-active young person. I have also gotten involved this year. From attending music concerts, dance shows, school plays, academic competitions and athletic games, I can re-inforce the importance of getting involved on a personal basis. This involvement has allowed me to view our students at their best, and sometimes worst, and has given me a deep appreciation of how lucky I am to have selected this occupation for my career.

I believe our job as educators is one of the most important occupations. To quote H.G. Wells, "Civilization is a race between education and catastrophe". I am proud to be an educator and even more proud of the students at Monte Vista High School — The Best School in the State!!

SUE WOOTEN

Superwoman of the MV Office

You see her every day hidden behind a pile of paperwork in the front office, after seemingly assaulted by students. Almost always busy at work, Sue Wooten divides her time between a multiple of important tasks. These include typing our daily bulletin, helping out students when the counselors are busy, and even reminding the principal that he has a meeting coming up. She's also in charge of organizing every substitute teacher that comes to Monte Vista. How can she do all of this and still keep her sanity?

We have all encountered our school secretary, Mrs. Sue Wooten, for some reason or another. After seeing the constant pressure she works under, some people may wonder how she can put up with the daily frustrations that she encounters day after day. "I've had other job opportunities in the past and rejected them. I would miss the students and faculty too much," says Mrs. Wooten. Although she does admit that her job is stressful, 95% of the time she enjoys it.

One of her favorite parts of the job is payday. "I become very popular on payday," she says. That is because Sue Wooten personally distributes checks to every faculty and staff member once a month.

New challenges face Mrs. Wooten every day, including this years addition of a new principal, Mr. Robert Giannini. The reason this was so tough for her was because she is the principal's secretary. It wasn't as hard as it could have been, though because she has known Bob for thirteen years and worked with him at California High School. "It's a pleasure to working with him," says Mrs. Wooten.

As a matter of fact, the only part of working at M.V. that Mrs. Wooten doesn't like is when she is sick. "The guilt of leaving my work for others is worse than being sick," she explains.

Sue Wooten is a fine example of dedication and the generally cheerful attitude of Monte Vista's clerical staff.

Waiting for Counseling

You walk into the office and all of a sudden you are hit by a deluge of sound. The clack of typewriter keys, voices of administrators as well as those of students, and music from some distant corner all invade your ears at once. You walk past the shelves housing the UC, State, SAT and ACT applications, and sit down in one of the six chairs lined up against the far wall.

Then the wait begins. The counselors are all busy, but regardless of that fact, you did get green-slipped to come down. Once you arrive, you realize that the same counselor who called you in has also requested the presence of at least five other students before you. As you are waiting for your turn to talk to the counselor you begin to wonder about the reasons behind that green-slip.

So, you sit there for three periods, and suddenly you realize that you are missing a test. You get up to leave just as Mr. Rogers comes out of his office to call you in. "Can you sign this?" you ask and then go on to explain, "I have a test so I've got to get going."

"Okay," he says. "I'll call you in again tomorrow."

3 New Teachers

Most years there are some changes in the teaching staff. And, so it comes as no surprise that this year we have welcomed several teachers to our school, among whom include Laurie Taner, Liz Irvine, and Gurdun Meir.

Laurie Taner, who has taken over the speech and debate program at Monte Vista, previously taught at a much smaller, private school where she dealt with the yearbook and newspaper, along with forensics. Monte Vista is a change of pace and she has found that, "You get less spitwads and paper airplanes than with the younger kids, "but notice she has specified only "less". Taner grew up in Richmond, with her two younger sisters, and went to attend Cal State Hayward.

Although she is new to most Monte Vista students, Liz Irvine is not really new to Monte Vista. Irvine worked at our school back in the seventies, but has just recently taken over Mr. Beale's job in the art department. Her job is a great challenge, for with over 40 students in each class, order has been difficult to maintain. In her classes, she emphasizes the basic skills needed for art. "We're starting out learning how to draw." Firm, fair and friendly is how she describes the casual relationships that she likes to establish with her students. Outside school, Irvine enjoys traveling to Africa, Europe, Hawaii, or most anywhere that has a hot climate. She has three cats and one dog.

Gurdun Meir, Monte Vista's new language teacher, was born in Germany but decided to leave her home country to pursue her dream to go to San Francisco. The German teacher is very familiar with the differences between the United States and Germany, which she sums up as being present in the food, schooling, and customs of the two nations.

1.) John Morrison speaks at Freshman Orientation.
2.) Julie Perry and Arla Stevens, our librarians, share a joke at the faculty luncheon.
3.) "Cowboy John" Morrison.
4.) Kathy Willing, Carl Strand, and Paula Sapunar discuss the beginning of school.
5.) William Streshley, SRVUSD Superintendent, lectures an unusual class of the Monte Vista faculty.
6.) Curtis Roster, Leon Borowski, and Randy Knudson enjoy their lunch.
7.) The ladies of the office, Sue Wooten, Face Nelson, and Carrie Gatti.

Congratulations!

There's a wonderful future out there!

COLOPHON

This 1988 La Vista© yearbook is the product of our yearbook staff at Monte Vista High School, 3131 Stone Valley Road, Danville, California, 94526. Phone 415-820-2900, ext. 244. The staff met in class daily during 4th period in room M-6 and carried on much of its production work during after school hours as well.

We were led by our Advisor, Mr. Robert Breuer, and Editor-in-chief Rob Mutzl and Production Editor Karen Garber. The book was printed by the Herff-Jones Company, yearbook printing division at Marceline, MO. The company's representative was Jim Gillespie.

The book is printed on 80# gloss paper primarily in black and white with some use of second color and full (four) color on 80 pages. Most of the type was set in the Century Schoolbook font style. Headlines are in 36 pt. and 24 pt. sizes, folios are in 14 pt., body copy in 10 pt. and captions and index in 8pt. type size. Some of the copy was set using WordStar on IBM P.C.s and there is a limited amount of page design done in PageMaker on a Macintosh Plus. Next year's book will more extensively employ desktop publishing systems and computers.

This is the first Monte Vista yearbook since 1974 to be printed in the 9" x 12" (large) format. It will be our standard size from now on.

TEMPUS FUGIT

Chris,

Well this has been some year hun? We've been through a lot and have told eachother a lot!

This book is the property of:

Chris!
Glad we became friends this year!
Math and science was fun. We got to go flying this summer – Have to Anyways seeya this summer or next year – Grant

Chris,
Well, why didn't
I get a chance to meet you sooner, we were in the same
class for 1 year.
Well at least we know each other
now. If you ever get bored during the Summer, give me a call # 935-5888
If you are busy or
I am not home, I will forgive you, I am glad we became friends.
